

ALLIES' NOTE BARS EX-KAISER

From Setting Foot on German Soil—Ex-Crown Prince May Stay if He Doesn't Make Trouble—Guarantees Demanded for Military Commission.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 22.—Government newspapers today hailed the decision of the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors to send two joint notes to Germany as re-accepting the Anglo-French entente.

Political opponents of Premier Poincare are accusing him of making too many concessions to England, but supporters of the premier claim he has not receded from his original demands.

The Echo National, a newspaper hostile to the premier, charged that the note bearing upon the return of the former crown prince "opened the door for the return of all the Hohensollerns to Germany, allowing Germany to prepare for a new war without molestation." The newspaper added:

"Premier Poincare's capitulation is the gravest in four years time."
It is understood that this note pledges Germany to keep the former crown prince from participation in politics and to bar the ex-kaiser from ever setting a foot upon German soil.

The Allies informed the Berlin government it would be held to strict accountability for any outward concessions that might result from the ex-crown prince's return. They pointed out the danger of his return and hinted at "new measures" if they are deemed necessary. However, the ex-crown prince will be allowed to remain in Germany unless his presence there leads to trouble.

The second note demands guarantees from Berlin that the officers of the Inter-Allied military control mission will be protected.

The Matin explained that France had made concessions to England for the purpose of maintaining an unbroken Allied front. Otherwise, said the newspaper, "The Versailles treaty would be non-existent."

"Pertinax," political expert of the Echo De Paris, explained that the Allies interpret resumption of Allied military control over Germany "without delay" as really meaning within fifteen days or two weeks.

Tension between Paris and London has been greatly lessened by the French concessions, and it was reported in some quarters that, if the present good feeling continues, England may again move for an international conference of reparations expert to fix Germany's capacity for indemnities.

RHINELAND SCENE OF VIOLENT FIGHTS

Separatists Being Hunted Down and Killed Without Mercy—Communists Join in General Disorder.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Nov. 22.—Hundreds of persons have been killed and wounded in a terrific wave of violence in the Rhineland within the past 48 hours. Communists, Separatists, anti-Separatists, peasants and police were involved in the fighting. There was much looting.

The fury of the population of the Honnelt region against the Separatists is taking the form of terrible cruelty.
Since Tuesday 130 Separatists have been beaten to death in that district and others were lynched. Bloody fighting continues.

A motor bus containing thirty Separatists in flight, was held up and all were dragged from the car. Twenty-three of them were killed and their bodies mutilated; only seven escaped with their lives.

A mob of half grown men, armed with spiked clubs, began rioting at Hagen, in Prussian Westphalia.
They marched through the streets shouting: "Hoch Rosa Luxemburg." (Rosa Luxemburg was the ring leader of the women Communists in Germany.)

Stores were looted and much property destroyed. The Reds were attacked by police and several were wounded before they were dispersed.

The Red Cross workers have been canvassing so enthusiastically and the people of Kingston responding so readily that the following semi-final report passes the $1,500 mark; as the quota for Kingston is only $2,500, and there remain four days yet before the city roll call ends the indications are that the goal is in sight.

rick.

Mrs. John Hall and Mrs. A. Hazen-bush have been added to list of workers on Eleventh ward team.
Mrs. Dan Hicks of the Tenth ward has had calls for additional window flags, small crosses and buttons and is now well supplied. Look out for the Tenth.

C. E. OF FIRST REFORMED CHURCH WINS BANNER
In the report of the Christian Endeavor rally given in Wednesday evening's paper, a few things were omitted. Each year a C. E. banner is awarded to the society having the largest percentage of delegates present. Tuesday evening this banner was awarded to the society of the First Dutch Church, who had thirty of their members present.

Mr. Boeve of the First Reformed Church was also elected pastoral adviser of the local union for the coming year.

At the close of the rally the delegates voted a hearty thanks to the members of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church for holding the rally at their church and making such a success of it.

KILLS WIFE IN STREET WHILE VIOLENTLY INSANE.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
East Warren, R. I., Nov. 22.— Ernest Fontaine, 27 years old, of Ellis avenue, killed his wife in the street here today after he had become suddenly violently insane.

Fontaine was arrested immediately after the killing. Neighbors were aroused by the piercing shrieks of the woman. When the man was overcome by attempted rescuers of the woman, she was dead.

NAVAL RESERVE AVIATION UNITS

Denby Approves Plan of Aides to Create Them Despite Handicap of Small Appropriation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 22.—Adoption of a definite aviation policy for the United States Naval Reserve Force with a view to supplying a sufficient number of trained naval fliers to complement the aircraft squadrons involved in the navy's "war plan," was announced officially today.

The plans approved by Secretary Denby and broadcasted to the country and the navy by Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of operations, provide for the establishment in each naval district of a naval reserve aviation unit capable of turning out ten new pilots annually.

Admiral Eberle said the mission of the aviation reserve units would be to the "acquisition and training of new members sufficiently young and who are suitable officer material, thus insuring a supply of new blood,
and the maintenance of the efficiency of members already qualified."

The training will be conducted along lines that will enable the qualified pilots to maintain proficiency in flying, to keep them conversant with the developments and policies of naval aviation, to give the personal experience in the upkeep of material, and to give elementary flight training to newly enrolled reservists.

Two training places and the necessary additional equipment will be furnished to each reserve unit by the Navy department, but admiral Eberle said that "in view of the shortage of funds, the department must look to the civil authorities of the community in which the unit is to be established for cooperation and material assistance in obtaining those items which the current appropriations cannot undertake."

Regular naval officers will not be detailing to the reserve units; because of a shortage of personnel, but qualified reserve officers will be called to active duty to take charge of the work.

Men between the ages of 18 and 28 years will be received in the reserve unit. After completing the prescribed course of study and training under reserve officers, the students will be detailed to a regular service organization for forty-five days further training, in service planes, under actual service conditions. At the end of the training period, the students will be commissioned as Naval Reserve Aviators.

Later, admiral Eberle said, training will be issued for training reservists to handle lighter than air machines.

Pilots engaged in flying for civilian firms will be enrolled in the naval aviation reserve force, it was stated, being given credit for their flying time with private companies.
Immediately upon their enrollment
they will be qualified for the 45 days training under service conditions, which will put them in line for commissioning without additional training.

SIX HELD AS FLOGGERS OF WOMAN AND MAN.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Marietta, Ga., Nov. 22.—With Keller Hasty and five other men under a $5,000 bond, each having been indicted in connection with the flogging of pretty Mrs. Martha Holcomb, and her companion, H. Horton, authorities today are continuing their rigid investigation into every phase of the case.

Hasty is a member of the Philadelphia Athletics. He was arrested with two of his brothers, Frank and Arthur, Tom Black, P. C. Cook and Joe Bramlett.

The Hasty brothers already have claimed a bribe and said they were in Marietta Friday night while the flogging occurred at Smyrna, near here. Pleas of mistaken identity will be submitted by at least four of the men, it was said.

Mrs. Holcomb, an employee of the telephone company in Atlanta, appeared before the Cobb county grand jury and for the first time told of her unmerciful flogging by a band of masked men. She wore several bandages and her face was scarred.

ALMONY AND COUNSEL FEES FOR MRS. COLE
Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morsehauser at Poughkeepsie in the action for a separation in which Nettie Cole is plaintiff against William A. Cole, defendant, has issued an order allowing plaintiff alimony in $10 a week during pendency of the action and $350 counsel fees. The parties were married at Walton, Delaware county, April 13, 1912, and the plaintiff resides in Kingston. The action is brought on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. W. D. and W. D. Brinnier, Jr., are attorneys for plaintiff.

McKenzie To Lecture.
H. C. McKenzie of Walton begins a series of lectures upon Taxation before the Agricultural students at the State School at Delhi at 9:40 o'clock Tuesday morning, November 27. The public is invited to attend these lectures.

St. Peter's Juniors Won.
The St. Peter's Junior team played the preliminary game at the armory Wednesday evening against the Company I quintet. St. Peter's played a very fast game and came out the winners 41 to 35.

Trolley Company Wants To Charge 10 Cent Fare

With Book Tickets at 8 Cents Each—Tells P.
S. C. Its Expenses Increase While Revenue Decreases.

Albany, Nov. 22. (Special).—The Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company has made application to the Public Service Commission for permission to charge a ten cent cash fare in Kingston, with a ticket fare of eight cents. The present fare rate is seven cents.

The railroad operated on a five cent fare until April 15, 1919, when a six cent fare was authorized. The company later made application to abandon certain parts of its lines in Kingston, but this step was abandoned and an agreement reached whereby a seven cent fare was placed in operation on December 23, 1920.

The company in its petition to the Public Service Commission today states that in 1921 certain economies were inaugurated which produced a saving over 1920 of $10,000. Since 1921 these savings have gradually diminished because of wage increases and other expenses, so that by 1924 the savings will be wiped out entirely. "The revenues received," says the company, "from its railroad at the present passenger rate are gradually diminishing, accounted for by the increased use of automobile and bus operations and other causes, so much so that the return upon the capital invested is not sufficient and will not allow your petitioner to add to and improve its railroad property or to keep pace with the growth and development necessary and meet the requirements of the territory served."

The company in a supporting petition shows that for the first nine months of 1923 its total revenue from street railroad transportation was $169,213. The total operating expenses were $129,026, and its taxes

BIG MONEY BEHIND BOOTLEG RING

Other Grand Jury Investigations to Follow That in Savannah Which Resulted in Indicting of 126 Persons.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 22.—The federal government will institute grand jury investigations in other parts of the country along lines followed in the Savannah, Georgia, expose, which resulted in the indicting of 126 persons, in connection with the uncertaining of a great nation-wide "bootlegring," William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, announced today.

The round-up of the Savannah defendants is now in progress, Burns said, in principal cities along the Atlantic seaboard and as far west as Chicago.

The identity of those indicted at Savannah was still withheld today pending arrests which are to be made by United States marshals on capias issued in Georgia.

In discussing the Savannah case today, Burns said that some of the country's leading financial interests were found to be backing the "bootlegging" without knowing the illegal use to which the money was being put.

"The Savannah bootleg ring," which linked up with the leading bootleggers in other cities, was so shrewdly operated that the principals had become openly defiant of the government," Burns said. "Drummers traveled over the country placing orders and guaranteeing delivery of carloads of rum after it had been unloaded from ships off the Georgia coast."

"Railroad men were in the conspiracy. The bootleg leaders kept a saw mill in operation to supply lumber used as camouflage for liquor shipments in freight trains out of Savannah for the north."

"This is the biggest step yet taken by the government to break up the chief bootleggers. Our investigation shows that one of the ring leaders in Savannah had made $4,000,000 smuggling liquor into the United States and many other fortunes of equal size have been reported to us from this source. The government will proceed for grand jury action in other parts of the United States along lines identical with those followed at Savannah."

SEEK "DR." SUTCLIFFE IN "DIPLOMA MILL" FRAUD
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hartford, Conn., Nov. 22.—With the extraordinary grand jury investigating Connecticut's alleged "diploma mill" frauds adjourned until next Monday, state authorities today were concentrating upon the quest for "Doctor" George E. Sutcliffe, of Unionville, Conn., whose arrest was recommended by the grand jury yesterday just before it concluded a three day session.

The jury's action in directing State Attorney H. M. Alcorn to proceed against Sutcliffe as the result of allegations that his negligence was instrumental in causing the death of Albert Hoody, an ex-service man, who died on the operating table of an over dose of ether while Sutcliffe was amputating his crushed finger, was the first definite result of the probe.

Efforts were made to locate Sutcliffe, an alleged product of the diploma mill, at Albany last night, but police learned that he had left there without divulging his destination.

State Attorney Alcorn reiterated today that he would take Sutcliffe if he had "to go all the way to Honolulu to do it." He said detectives today were seeking Sutcliffe as far west as Kansas City and St. Louis.

The inquiry so far has uncovered so many varied angles to the alleged fraudulent medical diploma ring and trails leading into a dozen states, that belief prevailed here the investigation would extend into next year.

An outcrop of the Sutcliffe affair was the removal yesterday from office of Dr. E. M. Ripley, medical examiner of Farmington by Coroner Calhoun, who said his action was the result of dissatisfaction with Dr. Ripley in exercising Sutcliffe of responsibility for the death of Hoody and failure to notify the coroner of circumstance of the case.

JAPANESE CHARGED WITH INHUMAN CRUELTY
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 22.—Charges of barbarous cruelty practiced upon helpless Koreans by order of Japanese officials during the recent earthquake disaster in Japan, were filed today by Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, president of the Friends of Korea in America.

American citizens were eye witnesses to 250 Koreans being bound hand and foot, covered with oil and burned alive, according to the report filed with Secretary Hughes.

Adam Was Drunk.
Adam Rubes visited Kingston on Wednesday and became acquainted with some of the thirdest emporiums down town. As a result, he was picked up helplessly drunk by Officer Dempsy. This morning Adam was fined $5 by Judge Schrick in police court.

At Agudas Achim.
The Rev. Haltman of New York city will hold services at the Congregation Agudas Achim on West Union street Friday evening and Saturday morning. Sunday evening at 7 o'clock he will give a concert there.

COOLIDGE SENDS MISSION OF PEACE

Slump Trying to Reconcile Regular and Progressive House Republicans Before Split is Hopeless.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 22.—The row between the Republican regulars and the Republican progressives in the house has become so serious that President Coolidge was ordered today to take a hand in it and try to mediate the differences so that the house may organize and get down to business on schedule time.

The White House already is showing its concern by sending C.
Bascum Slump, the president's secretary, to the capitol for conferences with the quarrelling factional leaders.

The possibility of lengthy delay in getting to the country the forthcoming message of President Coolidge with its expected recommendations for legislation because congress may not be organized to receive it is causing administration leaders grave concern.

This state paper is considered of vital importance to the future political well-being of the president and to the success of the Republican party. Political leaders have reported that voters throughout the country are holding back on individual and party commitments until they have studied the legislation recommendations of President Coolidge.
Meantime search for delegates by various presidential candidates is well under way.

The president is being kept in touch with developments of the house contest by Secretary Slump, former congressman, who is in daily conference with the factional leaders.
The latest being with Representative William J. Graham, Illinois, who is running for Republican floor leader against Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio.

It is the belief of progressives that the Longworth-Graham contest will result in enmities and bitterness which will help them in their fight to secure from the house Republican leaders reforms in house rules, important committee assignments, and progressive legislation which they demand.

Democratic Leader Fiels J. Garrett, of Tennessee, has arrived to take personal charge of the situation for the Democratic members.
House Democrats will caucus Saturday night, December 1, and name Garrett for speaker, thereby insuring his position as minority leader.

Speaker Gillett is expected here next Monday and will assume leadership of the Republicans in their contest with the progressives, or in negotiations which may be set on foot to bring about harmony by pacifying the progressives. The house Republicans will caucus Saturday, December 1 and their factional strife will come to a head at that time.

Gillett will be re-nominated by the caucus. The fight between Longworth and Graham will be ended by a selection of one of them for floor leader, and there may be "caucus bolters" because of dissatisfaction with the result. These bolters are expected by progressives to join their ranks. Many of the progressives will not enter the caucus.

The Democratic leaders expect the Republican caucus to agree to their demand that the important twenty-one-member committees of the house shall be made up of 12 Republicans and nine Democrats, and the ways and means committee shall have 14 Republicans and 11 Democrats. In the last congress the Democrats had six on the 21 member committees and eight on the ways and means committee. Refusal of the Republican caucus to grant the request might lead to an alliance with the progressives.

FRANCE HASN'T FORGOTTEN WHO LED AT VERDUN
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 22.—The cabinet today approved Premier Poincare's policy regarding the new notes to Germany and the method which the premier's instructions had been carried out by M. Cambon, French member of the ambassadors' council.
The cabinet is solidly supporting every move made by M. Poincare.

A statement was issued at the French foreign office saying:
"France hopes that foreign powers will appreciate France's sacrifices in allowing to return to Germany the commander of the German army in the battle of Verdun which cost France five hundred thousand dead. The future will demonstrate if the Allied views are best."

The former crown prince commanded the German army in the assault upon Verdun, one of the longest and bloodiest battles of the great war.

Preparing for Winter.
Charles Lay is installing in his Albany avenue residence a modern Kingstonian hot water heating system. The work is being done by the Canfield Stove Company.

Dr. Cady's Lecture.
The illustrated lecture tomorrow,
Friday evening, at the Elmendorf Street Church will show not only beautiful scenes in foreign lands, but many slides will depict native life in Morocco and Egypt.

Delta Alpha Society.
The regular meeting of the Delta Alpha Society will be held Friday evening, November 23, at the home of Mrs. Claude Deane, 323 Washington avenue.

BROWN OWNS TO SECOND BURGLARY

Troopers And Other Officers Fasten West Camp Crime On Negro Who Is Alleged To Have Stolen Policeman's Overcoat.

Investigation by Sergeant James Cunningham of the State Troopers and Sheriff Kolts and the local police has developed that Joseph Brown a stuttering negro, who is in the Ulster county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury in entering the home of Policeman Winfield Entrott on Andrew street, Sunday, and stealing a $45 overcoat belonging to the officer, also committed a burglary at West Camp about two weeks ago. At that time the residence of James B. Lewis at West Camp was burglarized and the sheriff notified and sheriffs, officers and state troopers have been investigating. A valuable overcoat, a Waltham watch, twenty sheets and quantity of canned goods and preserves were taken. Later a watch was recovered at Ribber's store on the Strand which was identified by Mr. Lewis and placed in the safe of Sheriff Kolts. Mr. Ribber said the one who sold him the watch was a negro who stuttered and wore a grey overcoat. Monday Brown was arrested for the Entrott burglary and the stolen overcoat given up by Ribber who had paid $10 for it. As Brown tallied with the negro who stole Ribber's watch and admitted his guilt in the Entrott robbery he-came questioned in jail and Wednesday Sergeant Cunningham and Sergeant Ribber of the local police, went to Ribber's and found the Lewis overcoat there, the negro having sold it for $8. Later when Brown was shown the coat and questioned by the sheriff, Sergeants Cunningham and Phinney he admitted the robbery at West Camp of the overcoat, the watch and preserves. He told of selling the watch and a pair of overcoat, and said he had eaten some of the preserves. Brown implied another negro in the robbery and he said was named Jackson and that Jackson took the sheets and went to New York. Brown had worked at Goldrick's brickyard and

SECRET OF ROOMS

Hiding Places Found in Old English Mansions.

Oldest Part of Stonyhurst Said to Be Riddled With Chambers and Passages Used in Middle Ages.

In the troubled times in the Middle Ages, when feuds and strife of all kinds were prevalent, many of the old mansions in England contained secret hiding places, where fugitives could hide in safety, while search was being made for them. Some of these places were fair-sized rooms, others little more than cupboards, just large enough for a man to stand upright. The time of the religious persecutions found almost all the old Roman Catholic houses of note possessed of secret chambers, often called "priests' holes." There are still more than three hundred existing in different parts of the country, many in a perfect state of preservation. There is something distinctly romantic and wonderfully interesting about these old places, where men and women hid in fear of their lives. Some unfortunate even died in the hiding holes, for skeletons have been found in many of them.

In the old mansion of Stonyhurst, in Lancashire, now a noted college, there are several of these secret chambers. One of these was situated in a wall behind a large bookcase. The entrance to it was through a sliding panel, the opening spring of which was cunningly concealed in the wall. When this place was discovered, some years ago, an old bed and mattress were found in it, also a great number of guineas of the reign of James II. The chamber itself was fairly roomy, and about five feet in height.

Tradition has it that the oldest part of Stonyhurst is riddled with secret passages and chambers. Some years ago, when alterations were being made in the structure a hollow beam with hidden hinges was found. It had evidently been used in bygone days for hiding sacred vessels and other valuables.

Yet another secret chamber in this old mansion is over the main entrance, in the central tower. From this, through a small hole, cunningly hidden in the carving of the coat-of-arms of the Sherburn family (the former lords of the manor) on a large shield of marble over the gateway, a good view could be obtained of the approach to the house. In this chamber a number of loaded horse pistols were discovered, many of them ornamented with silver. They had evidently been placed there for use in case of emergency. The fact that they were still loaded seems to show that the emergency never did arise. And, to confirm this, a full flask of rum was also found.

At Irtham Hall, in Lincolnshire, is another secret chamber. This hiding place is very cunningly devised. A solid oak beam, forming one of the steps leading down into the bedroom, was so arranged that it could be lifted up, disclosing a trapdoor that led down into the hiding place below. A fastening on the inside kept this door securely in place, thus rendering detection impossible.

The room, which was about 8 feet by 5, and 5½ feet high, was ventilated by means of a chimney. Its unusual shape and the fact that it alone, of all the other chimneys, was not blackened by smoke, gave the secret away.

On examination, the shaft was discovered to go straight down into the secret chamber. A subterranean passage was discovered some years ago, but the foulness of the air made it impossible to explore it very far. It is believed to run to Corby, a few miles distant, and to come out into an old house there.—London Answers.

Gauging Streams. One of the difficult problems in civil engineering is to gauge the flow of streams accurately. The difficulty arises from the fact that the water travels faster at the surface than at the bottom or near the banks, making it hard to determine the average rate of flow. An interesting method of gauging streams by chemical means has been devised, which consists, briefly, in adding a certain quantity of brine to the stream and in taking out samples at a point farther down, which samples are subjected to very accurate analysis. The increase of salinity gives a factor whereby it is claimed the stream discharge can be calculated with an accuracy leaving a margin of possible error of less than one per cent.

The Right Idea. "Marry me," said the poet, "and be my inspiration." "What's that?" asked the girl. "Be my inspiration," he repeated. "You mean I shan't have to cook or scrub?" she asked eagerly. "No." "Just be your inspiration?" "That's the idea." "Well, I'll consider it. I'll certainly consider. You have the right idea about married life."

"Seaweed" Flourishes in North Sea. Atlantic seaweed has invaded the North sea, and crowded out nearly all other forms of marine vegetation. Twenty years ago this Red sea product was unknown in these latitudes. Today it flourishes everywhere. The invader is supposed to have been imported on the hulls of ships.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK FOR WORLD

Writer Says America May Learn Lesson From Europe Which Will Make Her Greatest Nation.

"Europe, as a whole, is an experiment in force," writes Lincoln Steffens in an article in which he surveys Europe as a vast laboratory in which experiments have been made in every form of social and economical government; bolshevik, socialist, anarchist, labor and world government. From these experiments, according to Mr. Steffens, America may learn a lesson which will make her the greatest nation that has ever existed. Continuing his article, Mr. Steffens says: "The war was an explosion of force. It blew up the whole laboratory, and a chemist could have inferred that the mixture had made was explosive. He would not have blamed some poor military workman; he wouldn't even have said that glycerine was 'bad' and that nitro was 'good.' Not in chemistry. But in politics, he did. The professors everywhere were patriotic. They did not ask what caused the war. 'Who?' was the question they asked and answered, and so we have the same men who made the war making the peace, and consistently trying to carry out in their treaties the just purpose of the war, and suppressing all new ideas, begin laboring conscientiously and hard to set up the very same combination of social, economic and political elements which, having exploded before, is apt to explode again, as it does.

"All these European experiments are working with theories of force, and it is humanly dramatic and scientifically interesting that the opposite theory, the Christian doctrine of nonresistance, should be taken up for trial by Asia. The Indians are resisting British rule without force, by slow, patient disobedience and co-operative self-reliance. The British empire has arrested, tried and convicted Gandhi, their leader, just as the Roman empire did Jesus; but Christianity was not suppressed, and the Gandhi movement moves on, an experiment on one of our theories, that there is some moral way to free man from men's laws without learning and heeding God's laws.

"Behind Asia in the process of evolution, Europe is ahead of us and Africa, but we backward peoples are on the way; we are traveling along the same old road, and so, some day, we shall be where Egypt, Greece, Rome and poor old Europe are now. If we don't watch out."—Century Magazine.

Strength of Plywood. Plywood is wood of any variety that has been cut by a machine into thin layers and glued together in such a way that the grain of one layer runs at an angle to the grain of two adjacent layers. The strength of a plywood panel, in two planes greatly exceeds that of steel. With some wood, by combining cuts, it is even possible to get greater resistance to stress in all three planes than steel affords, although it is rarely necessary to go so far.

Ordinary wood used for airplane construction is not required to withstand severe stresses in more than two planes. What plywood means to airplane construction is well illustrated in the case of the Haviland machine. Before that method of using wood was invented the best airplane wing weighed 7,850 ounces and was capable of sustaining a load of only 91 pounds. Since then the plywood rib used on the Haviland weighs 512 ounces and will carry a load of 274 pounds.

SHALLOW BOSS MURPHY.

Boss Murphy's statement that he favors a beer and wine plank in the platform of the Democratic party next year is characteristic of the shallow thinking of the violent extremists on the prohibition question and just what might be expected from a political boss whose only notion of politics is to catch votes in order to win and divide the spoils. For many reasons, Boss Murphy's project will alienate many votes, catch few, and, in any event, bring about no real change in present conditions. Boss Murphy's appeal is to the "Booze vote" which he succeeded in fooling in New York state a year ago and which ought to realize by this time that it was fooled. Beer and wine is the smallest part of the question and growing smaller every day as, under the working of the Volstead Law, persons deprived of beer and wine are turning to the easily obtained stronger distilled liquors and obtaining satisfactory results therefrom. A few more years of the Volstead Law and there will be nobody left who wants beer and wine or anything else of such low voltage.

Boss Murphy talks of beer and wine, but not a word of the real evil of the Volstead Law, of its tyrannical perversion of the Eighteenth Amendment, of its dictating to physicians and imperilling of human life, of the great underlying principle that no sect should be permitted to impose its religious notions on the individual by means of the civil law.

Boss Murphy wants to "put Al Smith over" for president, regardless of principle or right. The Volstead Law is bad, but it is not the only bad thing in politics, and the voters will not be fooled into permitting an empty declaration against it to mask the ruinous socialistic features of "Al Smith's program" and the riot of craft and extravagance that would be sure to follow control of the nation by Tammany.

THE AUTOMOBILE AND FARM.

With soaring rents, increased cost of building and crowded and uncomfortable conditions in cities, it may be well to point out that there is still plenty of room in rural districts, and to suggest that with the automobile in such general use, one of the cherished objections to a rural residence has largely been eliminated.

A process of evolution, which may have been unnoticed by many, has been going steadily forward in this respect in New York state, especially, the cities, towns and villages are so well distributed, that in use of a car, residents of the country districts can easily reach these centers for any purpose sought so that the old plaint of isolation on the farm is no longer justified.

In fact, statistics by Federal officials show a large percentage of farmers, more than three hundred out of four hundred in a survey made of owned automobiles. If this percentage prevails throughout the state, three out of every four farmers are owners of machines. There has not yet been a survey in the cities but it may be safely said that the percentage would not be so high. But the importance of the advent of the automobile, especially those of the less costly variety, is to be considered not so much in the light of the fact that many are owned in the rural districts. The point to be given emphasis is that there is afforded a possible solution of the old problem of congestion in cities and isolation on farms.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is quoted as saying that "women are living under worse conditions in this country than in any other country in the world." It must annoy her exceedingly when European visitors write home that American women have the best of everything, some of them even going so far as to call the United States a "woman ridden" land.

"There is very little honor, dignity or justice in the United States, as compared with England," says Mr. Zangwill, who seems to be under

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.,
(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

THE IRON IN YOUR BLOOD.

In reading the advertisement in the street car I was struck by the number which advised the use of certain remedies and foods because they contained iron.

Now I've no fault to find with these advertisements. They are not likely misstating facts, but I just wondered if you realized that iron is a real everyday necessity in your blood if you are to be strong and well.

If you were to take from your garden a sample of the soil and have it analyzed, and then take a portion of that body of yours and have it likewise analyzed, you would be wonderfully struck with the similarity of the various elements contained in both.

You are then in your body just about like the soil in a good garden. And as this soil contains much iron, so then do the vegetables which grow therein. All the green things which you are emerging from the ground are rich in the same elements of which your body is composed. And of these elements iron is one of the most important.

It gives the blood the richness that enables it to repair and strengthen all the tissues of the body. Blood deficient in iron means weak anemic blood, and a general wasting of the body ensues.

While most foods contain some iron, a good habit for you to establish in your household would be something in the way of "greens" every day.

Youngsters do not always take readily to lettuce, cabbage, spinach, carrots and so forth but by a little careful handling you can arrange to have them appear for at least once a day anyhow.

The idea that iron enriches the blood has persisted for many years, and has its foundation on actual fact. So get your iron daily.

Few murderers escape some penalty or other, even the most careful. A strangling mystery two years old has just been solved by means of a handkerchief the murderer stuffed in the mouth of his victim in her apartment in the Rue des Filatiers, Paris. When a robber was arrested recently for holding up a teller of the Bank of France he gave a previous address in the Rue des Filatiers. The handkerchief was then taken all over France and shown to his relatives and friends. Finally, at Carcassonne, his sister unsuspectingly admitted she had embroidered it for him.

K. H. S. FACULTY AT HI-Y MEETING

Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A., the faculty of the high school was entertained by the Hi-Y. Both the teachers and the pupils had a fine time and enjoyed getting together. This is the first time that this has ever been done and it was certainly a success.

Theodore Thielpe led the devotional exercises by reading thirteen verses of the second chapter of Paul's second epistle to Timothy.

Mr. Perry gave notice of the football banquet which will take place on December 5. The speaker for this occasion will be Elmer Oliphant, one of the greatest athletes ever put out by West Point.

President Vogt introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor Bennett of the New Paltz Normal School, who delivered a very interesting address on Christ, the Master of Men. Professor Bennett took the character of Christ from the social standpoint. The Master of Men was a good mixer and therefore attractive to his higher class while his congeniality made him attractive to the poor and ignorant. Christ was democratic and enthusiastic. He was not the life of the party, but He always laughed with those who laughed and cried with those who cried.

The Master of Men was always busy and was always working. He said that He must be about His master's business. Another important thing is sincerity. One must be absolutely sincere when taking the Hi-Y pledge. One must be sincere in word and in deed. Sincerity is like a boomerang, it always comes back. Christ was absolutely sincere.

One other quality found in Christ is serenity and contentment. This is a good asset if we remember the true presence of God and that we are here today by His grace and will, it would be easier to attain serenity.

This man also had a keen sense of humor, not too funny, but enough to keep from sentimentalism. Professor Bennett then concluded hoping that he had brought something worth while to all present.

President Vogt then called on Dr. Michael for a few words. He said that in his long experience in school work he had never seen anything finer than this banquet. He had never seen the teachers and the teachers assembled together on a good basis of friendship. He congratulated the young men of the Hi-Y for their efforts to bring the teachers and the teachers into close relations.

Professor Van Ingen said that never in his long school experience had he ever seen a night like this. It increased the spirit of co-operation between the teachers and pupils. The Hi-Y is a great factor in producing the spirit of working for one another which is the spirit needed between teachers and pupils.

The meeting adjourned after the singing of the school song and a cheer for the faculty. Music for the evening was furnished by a few jazz artists who are members of the Hi-Y.

Barrington Hall
Coffee

Pul-Vo-Drip is cut so that boiling water has direct access to the volatile oils, insuring quick extraction of the full strength without loss of flavor. When it is necessary to cook coffee to get out the strength it develops a bitterness that mars its true taste.

DIRECTIONS

To prepare Pul-Vo-Drip in an ordinary coffee pot, simply add boiling water, allow it to stand two or three minutes, then pour or strain into another vessel (preferably china). In a percolator, allow half the usual time. Quick infusion is the secret.

We have designed a coffee pot that does it all in one operation. For information and free order, ask your grocer or write to:

KINGSTON FOR DEEPER HUDSON

As Well as Ulster County, Roscoe Irwin Says—Calls Attention to Rail and Manufacturing Facilities.

The people of Ulster county, including the city of Kingston, which is already a port on the Hudson, are very much for the Deeper Hudson movement according to Roscoe Irwin, former mayor of Kingston and collector of internal revenue for the Albany district, says the Kingston Press.

Two railroads run into Kingston, the West Shore division of the New York Central, and the Ulster and Delaware, which traverses the Catskill mountains west to Oneonta, connecting there with the Delaware and Hudson. The Ulster and Delaware has tracks right to the water's edge on Rondout Creek, which is the harbor of Kingston.

"We have railroad facilities worth while for an ocean seaport," said Mr. Irwin, "and we have also industries, among which are tobacco and shirt factories, the raw material for which could come by ocean ships to them direct. With cheaper freight rates, other industries are certain to locate in that section. General merchandise coming from coastwise and foreign ports would also constitute an important factor. Rondout creek, with enough depth for ordinary river steamboats, would, of course, have to be deepened to permit ocean traffic, but that would not be a serious difficulty when we prove to the government that we have the business here to justify the expense. The Hudson river opposite Kingston is of ample depth for ocean boats, so that all we need is a deeper harbor."

"I am sure you can rely on all the people of that part of the Hudson river district to assist with the Deeper Hudson. They would be working against their own interests if they were not heartily for it."

JUDGE CLEARWATER PRAISES
GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY PLAN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 22.—Judge A. T. Clearwater of Kingston has written Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, a letter endorsing International Golden Rule Sunday, in which he says:

"The International Golden Rule Sunday movement impresses me as a most inspiring effort, and one which will exact a most beneficial influence not only throughout the entire Christian world, but beyond its boundaries, and among those nations which have not embraced Christianity. The St. Nicholas Society of New York, of which I am the president, has joined with twenty-five societies of similar origin and purpose in a joint Thanksgiving service to be held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Sunday, November 25th, which is an effort along much the same line."

The International Golden Rule idea had its inception in Geneva last September when representatives of fourteen countries gathered to consider the plight of the little children of the Near East, orphaned through wars, massacres and famine. We are asked to provide for our Golden Rule Sunday dinner approximately the simple fare that is served to the children in Near East Relief orphanages, and then make as generous a thank offering as possible to the Near East Relief in order that these children may live and grow into useful, self-supporting men and women.

International Golden Rule Sunday is sponsored by President Coolidge, former President Wilson, members of the cabinet, Governor Smith and others high in the affairs of state, as well as by prominent educators, clergy and club women.

GOOD ROADSMichigan Girl's Essay
in Safety Competition

Best essayist of more than 400,000 elementary school pupils, the 13-year-old school girl of Pontiac, Michigan, now residing at Lansing, Michigan, is announced as winner of the second national safety essay contest conducted under the auspices of the highway education board.

As a reward she receives a gold watch and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid, awards offered at the beginning of the contest for the essay winning first national honors. Her prizes are the gifts of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Poole's essay is as follows: In a game each person has his part to play. Let us think of the task of making a nation safe as a game in which each has his place to fill and his bit to do.

One might suppose we children have very little to do with the safety of our nation, but we are the coming generation and in our time shall uphold better and safer highways.

As in a game, there are rules to follow. These things we must do: Always observe traffic before crossing a street.

When walking on a road keep to the left to meet on-coming vehicles.

Learn automobile signals to know what a motorist means to do.

When alighting from a street car stand until sure of a safe way to the curb.

Help those in need.

Keep close to the curb when riding a bicycle, and give correct signals when turning.

Thus we shall spread our safety interest and information.

Now come the things we must not do, rules just as important if we are to play the safety game.

Don't hurry! Most accidents are caused by the desire to save a few seconds.

Never play in the streets nor dash before moving vehicles.

Never jay-walk.

Never steal rides.

Never make a blind dash across a thoroughfare.

Never stand in the street while waiting for a car—you are safer on the curb. One cannot always stand on his rights.

A child's part in this safety game is to keep from being "tagged" by an automobile. In the many automobile accidents in which the driver is blameless, a pitifully large number of children are victims.

Then there are always drivers who consider that responsibility ceases with the tooting of the horn. Since we stand less firmly than a telephone pole we had better be out of their way.

Our code is a code of honor. Nobody can make us play fair. Our schools foster athletics to encourage clean effort. More important than ordinary athletics is the game in which we save the sorrow of accidents and loss of life. If I could feel that by joining this safety team I had saved one little child, I would consider my effort better spent than if I had won highest honors in athletics.

These things children can do. It is because of the splendid foresight of our elders that we are having these things laid before us while we are of an age when it is easy to learn. Much time, money, and thought are being spent to teach us safer ways. And if we become men and women who think safety and act sanely we shall have a nation of happier and safer people. "Always Be Careful."

To Prevent Automobile
Accidents by Low Walls

The Long Island railroad is building an approach to one of its grade crossings that, it hopes, will prevent automobile accidents. As the motorist approaches the crossing, low cement walls force him to bear gradually to the right, then in order to get over the railway to make a sharp turn first to the left, then to the right again. As five miles an hour is as fast as the turns can be made, drivers will have time to look for oncoming trains. The cost of the low walls is trivial.

Accidents Prevented by Keeping Highways Open

To prevent accidents by keeping the roads open for two-way traffic, parking of vehicles of all descriptions is prohibited on all state highways in Pennsylvania. Motorists are not permitted to stop at the foot of a hill, crest of a hill, or any portion of a curve. A fine of $10 to $25 is provided for each violation of the rule.

Sample Road is Narrow.

A sample mile of paved road 18 feet wide is to be constructed in Minnehaha county. This is not wide enough for the traffic under present conditions. A 20-foot roadway is safer for all concerned.

Work for Auto Makers.

All the automobile makers who are reducing the price of their cars ought to get together and agree on a way to reduce the cost of widening the roads.

Secures Position.

Miss Alice Alshemer, an honor graduate of Spencer's Business School, Wall and John streets, has secured a desirable position as stenographer, typist and office assistant with William Schwarzwelder & Company, wool workers, Chichester.

SMITH NOT TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

If He Can't Land Presidential Nomination Will Retire to Private Business, Say Wise Ones at Capitol. By Telegraph to The Freeman, Albany, Nov. 22.—Governor Alfred E. Smith will not be a candidate for re-election regardless of what happens at the next Democratic national convention.

This is the report one hears constantly at the state capitol, but so far as the governor is concerned he is "not talking for publication."

In the event that Governor Smith declines to consider a renomination at the hands of the Democratic party in this state, present indications are, say the "wise ones" at the capitol that Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn of Schenectady, stands the best chance of being the Democratic state standard bearer in 1924.

Lieutenant Governor Lunn, it is said, would welcome the opportunity of being a candidate for governor. His friends are pointing to the fact that he has made a "colossal" good Lieutenant governor, has had considerable experience in politics, is an exceptionally able campaigner and one who would poll a big vote upstate.

Democratic leaders who have visited the capitol during the last week appear to think that the chances of Governor Smith landing the Democratic nomination for president have bettered materially in the last two or three weeks.

Talk at the capitol is that if Governor Smith does not land the presidential nomination he will return to private business in New York.

The name of Mayor William S. Hackett of Albany, twice elected chief executive of the Capital City, also is mentioned in connection with the gubernatorial nomination. Mayor Hackett is a bank president and it is said, is not altogether "stuck" on the political game.

NOV. MEETING P-T. A. SCHOOL 6

The November meeting of the P. T. A. of No. 6 school held Tuesday afternoon was attended by about fifty members. After listening to a fine musical program consisting of a piano and violin duet by Dorothy Schoonmaker and Clara Hallahan and two exceptionally well rendered vocal solos by Little Robert Liscam, the routine business was transacted. Following this was the report of the recent food sale conducted by Mrs. George Clarke. The sale proved to be a very satisfactory one. The parents of the district were very liberal in both donating to and patronizing the sale which swelled the fund considerably. After planning the Christmas work for this year the association listened to a fine report given by Mrs. Justin Field who had been a delegate to the 27th annual convention of New York State Congress of Mothers and P-T. Associations.

In part she said:
I wish it were possible for me to convey to you the inspiration I received from the convention, but I will try to give you in condensed form some of the good things I feasted on while away. It was said at the convention that we must open both ears and drink it all in, and when we reached home to let it all come out of our mouths, so I will try to do that in part.

Tuesday morning was spent in registering and getting acquainted and seeing to a number of things in regard to the convention. The building that was given over to our use was a splendidly equipped building in every way, with a beautiful auditorium and the platform was kept supplied the whole time with beautiful flowers and plants which in itself was an inspiration. (My impression the whole time I was there was that I was among God's noblewomen, women that were doing things, women that were working for the good of humanity, women that were too big for the petty things of life, women who put themselves in the background, and made the cause first in every way.)

The keynote of the convention was enthusiasm and growth along all lines. The importance of the child in every way was brought out. During last year 108 new clubs have affiliated with the state, and we have now at the present time 22,508 members in the state of New York alone. The total number of clubs in the state is 406.)

Tuesday afternoon the session opened to the delegates. All the reports from the officers showed progress, but it also gave us an insight into the great amount of work done along public work, legislation and educating, work in county fairs and literature. There are 400 subscribers to Child Welfare, but really every member should be a subscriber. One of the outstanding features of the four days' program of the convention and one that will be long remembered by the delegates was the banquet given Tuesday evening in the Osborne House.

At 6:30 nearly 400 women and a few men were assigned to their places. It was a big assemblage, and one which represented many of New York state's homes and schools. During the serving of the dinner Mr. Geistweitz prevailed upon the gathering to give gusto to the songs which he selected to sing thus putting pep and enthusiasm in the community singing. At the conclusion of the dinner, all of the guests gathered together in the main dining room to listen to the remarks by the various speakers, Mrs. Martin J. Lower, toastmistress.

Mrs. Lower then introduced Superintendent of Schools Barford. In doing so, she stated that it was the opinion of the Parent-Teacher Clubs of Auburn that a wise choice had been made in selecting Mr. Barford as superintendent. She stated that she had been asked by the local people to assure him that no organization in the state, no group of people, could understand the responsibilities and the heavy load that he is carrying, and that all of this local organization can do is to work with him and help lighten that load for him and for the children of Auburn.

Superintendent Barford thanked the members of the Federation for their contribution, and stated he was glad to be present at such a splendid gathering.

He told the women that they represented the organization which stands between the schools and homes, and urged the women to do all in their power to bring harmony between the taxpayers of the state and the schools. He welcomed the women to Auburn and concluded by expressing the hope that the convention may prove a profitable one in every respect.

Mrs. Allen Macy Dulles, the next speaker, extended a most cordial welcome and greeting to the women. She then touched on the importance of education, stating that there is nothing of so great importance as our children, and that thing of vital importance is the education of our children. She stated that the educational program has become of vital interest to the public, but that the actual study of the child was left to the parents and teachers.

"There is a tremendous task before the parents and teachers of this greater generation," said Mrs. Dulles. "And like the philosophers of olden days, I believe the teachers are coming into their own and that everyone is realizing the big part they take in the life of the child."

Mrs. Montford C. Holley, president of the state organization, responded to the various greetings extended by the local speakers.

Group Without Discord.
She said: "There is no room in our association for anyone who wishes to put herself forward. All our officers stand ready to sacrifice themselves for the good of the cause. You will find no discord in our group."

The importance of putting play into the educational program of a municipality was stressed in the fine talk given by Miss Georgia Sprague of New York city, who was introduced by Mrs. Lower.

"It has been my privilege in the past few years to address chambers of Commerce, Rotary Clubs, Kiwanis Clubs and City Clubs of various kinds, but I can honestly say that the greatest satisfaction I have is in addressing Parent-Teacher Associations, because of their keen understanding of the problems of children," Miss Sprague said.

"When one considers the problems of the child, and then thinks of the thousands of children who are without parents in the real sense of that word, there are some who will understand why the children of today are subject to the dangers of present living conditions."

Great Value of Play.
"We need recreation in our educational program. It is essential and must be a part of that program if we give the child of today his rightful opportunity. We have many noted leaders of organized education today who have seen the need for this recreation, but the fact remains that the full expression of the play spirit may not, at this time, find its place in the public school system. That seems rather remote and far that reason the Parent-Teacher Associations should not stand in back of the formal movement but they should assist in putting on the informal part of our educational program."

"President Harding, when speaking last year on child welfare, stated that the vital, basic importance of play is now quite generally associated. Play, he stated, is the sculptor which shapes the life of the child. He confides his dreams to his play and becomes what his play is.

"Playtime is the time when character is being formed, but playtime can be destructive to the child as well as constructive if the players are left unsupervised and choose their own course. Eighty-six per cent of all crime and vice in this country is committed during leisure hours."

The boys and girls must have the right leadership in their play hours or their instincts will carry them unwillingly, and without actual desire on the part of the child, into serious trouble."

Miss Sprague cited many examples that had come to her attention where boys were placed in reform schools because of their desire to experiment rather than to commit actual wrong. She stated that girls, too, have a natural social instinct which must be guided by the right leadership.

Other addresses followed which gave us food for thought but I must hasten on. After the addresses we adjourned to the gymnasium of the Women's Educational rooms and Miss Flashback, representative of P. & R. Association of America, had charge. We had a splendid time playing games, singing and marching and we all felt as though we had gone back to our childhood again. We thought if our children could have seen us they would not have recognized us, but mothers need a playtime too. Wednesday morning was given to reports of district chairmen, each telling of the most important things accomplished by clubs of her district. Some of the interesting things were a grandmother's party, and interesting incidents told of childhood 60 years ago, another had a handkerchief bazaar, some have an annual school picnic, some had introduced the school banking system, one school served Grade A milk and so on.

One very unique thing was done in the afternoon meeting, Mrs. Brown of Gloversville came to the platform with John Westley Richards, a six month baby in her arms. Mrs. Brown stated that the baby had attended all of the sessions of the congress so far and all of the committee meetings held by his Auburn friends in preparing for the congress. Mrs. Brown moved that the baby be made a life member of the congress. Motion was carried and the $25 was quickly raised by the gathering.

Mrs. Montford Holley, president of the congress for past three years, gave her reports. She spoke of the wonderful growth of the congress. Ten years ago she said there were 53 clubs in 22 counties, and now there are 406 clubs in 59 counties, with a total membership of 22,508.

The principal address Wednesday evening was given by W. Reese Williams, deputy superintendent of schools, Yonkers, N. Y. Mr. Williams spoke on "The True American." "I wish," said Mr. Williams, "to consider for a few moments some of the ideals of citizenship as they are taught and exemplified in the life and character of the great American, Theodore Roosevelt, whose soul, though he is dead in the flesh, still goes marching on, for more than any other man of his generation, he has taught us what citizenship in this Republic really means." Mr. Williams brought out the shining lights in the life of this great man, saying that mere eulogy is futile.

He also said among other things the safety of our nation depends on the attitude of its citizens. Cooperation is a great social force. More mutual cooperation is needed between parent and pupil. A parent's obligation does not end when the taxes are paid, nor does the teacher's obligation end when she locks the school-room door.

Thursday morning we listened to a very interesting address from Miss Laura Holland, director of Girl Scouts in western Pennsylvania. She quoted as her text, "Give us the young, and we will create a new mind and a new world, in a single generation." Her talk was most inspiring.

Then followed the election of officers, the delegates voting alphabetically. Thursday afternoon we heard some very interesting things at the Round Table conference conducted by Mrs. Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace advised learning right methods when starting the training of children; she said that the work of the mother and the teacher is nothing short of cooperation with God. Positive methods in child training do not mean to drive them into defiance, to chill their sensibilities, they mean happiness and harmony, health and physical development, and a normal outreach toward the best and finest which the universe offers.

Thursday evening we listened to a most wonderful address delivered by Horace W. Fitch, judge of the juvenile court of Canadaigua.

REICHSTAG DEBATES FATE OF STRESEMANN CABINET.

BANDIT CHASERS SHOOT FOUR POSSE MEMBERS.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Brazil, Ind., Nov. 22.—Four men were shot in a battle between Brazil officers and a posse of men, all of whom were trying to apprehend a suspected gang of bank robbers at Cory, 14 miles southwest of here, early today. The officers mistook the members of the posse for bandits.

Siberia Has $25 Million Tons of Coal.
The presence of coal in eastern Siberia has been known for many years and since the construction of the first railway through that region lignite and soft coal mines convenient to transportation have been worked. The total known deposits on the mainland contain some $25 million tons, part of which is hard coal.

Helen Hamilton

When she was a little girl playmates threatened to bury Helen Hamilton of Camden, N. J., alive. The terror inspired her heart, and now she is dying, on the eve of her 13th birthday. Her gallant fight for life and her pitiful plea for a wrist-watch, which led newspapermen to give her a pretty one, have attracted the attention and the prayers of the whole state. Her mother, a poor seamstress, was forced by the landlord to give up her room because of the publicity, and the dying girl was carried to a neighboring home, where a kindly landlady cares for them. Medical science can do nothing, but the girl, firmly religious, is dying happily, surrounded by scores of gifts from unknown friends. She prayed only to be allowed to live until her birthday.

Breeding Snakes.

The breeding of snakes has become a recognized industry. The skin of the snake is used in making many leather novelties, while the fat of the snake's carcass yields an oil which is valued in the treatment of muscular rheumatism. Even for the snake's venom there is a market, since it has a recognized medicinal value and finds a ready sale among physicians and chemists.

Business Before Sentiment.

"Darling" exclaimed the happy husband after the minister had pronounced the fatal words, "I am not worthy of you." "Of course you are not," she replied; "but after a girl has celebrated her twenty-fifth birthday for five consecutive years she can't afford to be too particular."—Clacka-Ball Enquirer.

Youthful Lovers Quarreled.

He was shorter than I, but we were the same age and both freckle-faced kids, but each thought the other beautiful. One day he accompanied me down town and we had a quarrel. The day after I made an advance to make up because it was my fault, but he wouldn't. He has tried ever since to make up, but this ended my love affair.—Exchange.

The Burrowing Owl.

The burrowing owl is a small owl which burrows in the ground in many parts of North and South America. It is about ten inches long, grayish brown, profusely spotted with white, with the head smooth, without plumage. This is the owl, well known on the western prairies in connection with the prairie dogs, in the deserted burrows of which it makes its nest. These owls are diurnal, and feed upon insects and small mammals and reptiles.

Deserved Tribute to Dog.

Tribute to a dog's bravery was paid by the owner in an obituary notice, published recently in an English paper, which stated: "Died, at Torquay, Tom, dear dog, a blue Dane. He saved the life of his owner twice during the war. He jumped over the high wall into a canal and saved a child who was being led to do so. He was shot out being told to do so. He was a noble, gentle, companion and friend of his owner during nine years, and she mourns him."

HOW MANY MORE MUST DIE?

Through Leniency of Courts and Failure of Legislature to Enact Adequate Automobile Laws.

An editorial in Motordom, official publication of the New York State Automobile Association, says:

Charles Pierce, of Little Falls who while driving when intoxicated last summer, forced another car off the road, seriously injuring two women and a child, was sentenced to jail for 15 days in Massachusetts besides the jail sentence he would have automatically lost his right to drive a car for a year, and in New Jersey he would have gone to jail if caught living while intoxicated, even though he caused no accident. However, it is encouraging to know that an upstate judge can say the word "jail" when dealing with motor vehicle law violators. We have picked out the case of Pierce for special mention here because his arrest was brought about by members of the New York State Automobile Association, who saw the accident while on their way to the mid-summer meeting at Ogdensburg.

There is altogether too much leniency among courts in New York state, particularly those outside of New York city. Judges and courts are too prone to listen to political influence or they haven't got back bone enough to resist it. It might not be entirely inappropriate to ask, in view of this situation, how many people have gone to their death because the courts have failed to throw the fear of the law into the minds of reckless drivers and potential law breakers. A case in point is that of State Trooper Roy Donovan, who was shot to death on the so-called bootleg trail near Glens Falls a few weeks ago. The man later arrested on the charge of killing the trooper was a confessed bandit and bootleg hijacker. He had a long criminal record, in which the words "sentence suspended" frequently occurred. How much did those suspended sentences have to do with the death of Roy Donovan? Is it not fair to assume that this fine young state trooper torn away by the man's hand from a young wife and child might be living today if it were not for the frequency with which suspended sentences are handed out to criminals with political influence.

The latest figures in the number of people killed in this state by automobiles tell an eloquent story. Of the 1,000 deaths of the courts through the failure of the legislature through not enacting adequate laws. The number of persons killed in New York last year up to November 1 was 2,007. With two more months to go the figure will go up to at least 2,500, the highest in the history of the state, a jump of nearly 100 per cent over last year. In New York city the number killed up to November 1 was 730 while upstate 1,277 persons were killed. Up to a few years ago the number killed by automobiles was always greater in New York city than in the rest of the state. The falling off in New York city can be attributed to two causes, the licensing of operators and the fact that the courts there are giving 100 sentences to automobile law breakers. Outside of New York city the operators licensing law is not in effect, and the police courts are subject to the pressure of more petty politicians than most any other state in the country. How many more lives have got to be snuffed out before the legislature and the courts wake up to their duty to the law abiding people of the state?

Herbert W. Baker formerly brought this situation to the attention of the New York State Automobile Association at its meeting at Ogdensburg, when he said in his annual report:

"Conditions such as exist in connection with the operation of automobiles in this state today, are a blot upon modern civilization. If 1,786 people lost their lives suddenly in one catastrophe, it would shock the whole state for a moment at least, but it seems that no one is very particularly interested in conditions which collect an annual toll of 2,000 human lives, except the immediate family or relatives of the victims of a system which has grown to such proportions as the result of the leniency or inefficiency of the courts, political favor or influence, and the criminal negligence of those in authority, whose sworn duty it is to enforce the law."

IN BALLAST

By DOROTHY SCOVILLE

(By the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

THE Sea Wind was only two days out of Boston when she was run down one foggy morning by a freighter, of Sow and Pigs shoal. By the united efforts of four husky seamen at the pumps, and the coast guard cutter towing her, the Sea Wind managed to get into the Cove Harbor without sinking, although her deck was awash.

The day after she came in a nor'easter blew up during the night and the Sea Wind drifted nearly over to the fish company's old pier, long deserted and half to pieces, where she lay as though moored by her own seamen.

The schooner was old; was being taken down to Perth Amboy to be dismantled and used as a coal barge, and the company who had bought her decided she wasn't worth bothering with after seeing the hole in her bow, so she was stripped and left.

The day the Sea Wind was abandoned, Jimmy Crocker discovered and adopted her. Jimmy was the assistant keeper of Easterly light. He was tall, sea-browned and young, with a stern, far-away look in his gray eyes that came from dreaming of the time when he would step before the inspector at Boston and would receive his coveted master's license. He had been ready to take out his master-papers; was in Boston, when he had been run down by a carelessly driven auto. The lameness had never gone, although the accident had been nearly three years ago. Old Doc Hanes had said it might never go.

He had taken the lighthouse job because it was where he could watch the ships, and because the doctor had prohibited hard work for a while. Then, too, it was away from people and pity—pity that he dreaded more than anything. He wanted to be alone. That was why he adopted the Sea Wind.

The villagers smiled tolerantly at this queer young man who preferred his own company to that of the men in the village. He got the name of being a bit "queer." Even the sweetest smiles and the gayest chatter of the girls did not interest him. Then Mona Clarke came along.

Mona Clarke was a slender little flapper with short black curls and the features of a saint; a saint with cherry red lips, flaming cheeks and sparkling black eyes.

"Her heart's like a ship in ballast," old Captain Gates would chuckle to his cronies. "It's empty!"

Yet when Jimmy Crocker first saw Mona Clarke his heart turned completely over.

In a very short time the whole village had it that Mona Clarke was making a fool of that good looking young lightkeeper at Easterly point. No one could understand it, and least of all did Jimmy himself. He shuddered at her actions and her paint, yet he was fascinated; admitted he loved her.

Then the tragedy came. One morning Mona Clarke was found on the beach, a bruised and torn little heap. She had dared the "Needles" once too often, and had been caught in the surf that broke against those jagged rocks. Her family took her away in search of the best doctors, but in spite of their care three months later the verdict was "Lame for life."

Jimmy Crocker was almost wild. He had heard no word from her and, thinking she had forgotten him, tried to forget her. He studied all the books on navigation he could find. His lameness was slowly disappearing and the day came when he left the light for Boston, and the examination that would give him his master's papers.

Through Captain Zed the tars and old man who had shared the lightkeeper's duties with Jimmy, the village heard that he had a convalescent freighter. Sometimes the steamer would pass by the point. Captain Zed would be on the highest, barest dune then, waving a turkey red table cloth, and watching through the glass for a return flutter of red.

A year ran along and summer came again. To the surprise of the much interested villagers, the old Sea Wind showed signs of life. She was patched and painted till she looked almost fit for sea again. Then one day a sign appeared at the foot of the dock, and the mystery was cleared. The Sea Wind was renewing her youth as a place for teas and luncheons and the manager was a slim, dark-eyed girl who walked with a limp, and who had the face of a saint.

The Sea Wind was an instant success. The red tables on the deck beneath the striped awning were always filled. Mona's old crowd came at first prepared to be amused at her latest whim, but they were, instead, respectful and puzzled. She was so changed.

It was in the fall when Jimmy Crocker came to visit Captain Zed for a few days. As he rounded the point, Jimmy saw the changed Sea Wind. He walked about half way down the wharf and then stopped, but after a moment Captain Zed, watching from the tower with his glass, saw him go slowly up to the gang-plank, saw a girl come limping down to meet him. Captain Zed laid his glass down with a chuckle.

"Jumpin' fish! I'll never see him 'tall now!" He went slowly down the winding stairs. "Well, she's a nice little girl 'n' he's a deservin' feller. They ought to make a good voyage together. She'll be good ballast for him, too; keep him steady 'tween Susan." Captain Zed called the black cat into the kitchen, "Guess we eat alone to-night."

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Nov. 21.—The Rev. James Cantine, D. D., will speak in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning, November 25. This will be the last opportunity to hear Dr. Cantine for some time, as he and Mrs. Cantine sail for Arabia on November 30.

The "potato donation" held by Stone Ridge Grange on Monday evening was well attended. Over two hundred people were present. A considerable amount of potatoes was secured. These, as was said in a recent issue of this paper, will be divided between the Industrial Home and Home for the Aged. A very interesting program was given and was followed by a community sing. All enjoyed the music and singing of Mr. and Mrs. Green, Mrs. L. D. Sahler and Walter Henry. It was a treat to have Mr. Eppes back again to lead the community singing.

The following are the committee for the C. E. Fair to be held in the basement of the Reformed Church on Thursday evening, December 6: Supper committee, Mrs. Luther Jamison, Mrs. C. N. Stevens, Mrs. J. Wood, Mrs. Fred Davis, Nancy Smith, Mrs. L. D. Sahler, Mrs. Don Gillespie, Mrs. L. D. Cornish. Surprise booth: The Misses Dorothy Stevens, Marjory Stevens, Marion East, Carol Neul-son, Doris Freyland, Millie Beatty, Alberta Davis. The supper committee has decided to have a roast pork supper. Menu: Roast pork, mashed potatoes, peas, cranberries, cabbage salad, celery, pickles, biscuit, two kinds of bread, (white and brown), coffee, ice cream and cake. Supper will be served from 6 o'clock on.

Mrs. C. C. Hardenburg has gone to Syracuse to attend the Home Bureau meeting.

Mrs. R. Hearer entertained a number of friends with a turkey dinner on Sunday evening, November 18.

The play, "Mr. Bob," will be given in the Grange hall on Tuesday evening, November 27, by the young people of the Reformed Church.

OPINION IN LIVINGSTON CASE

By Which Appellate Division Upholds Order in Condemnation Against Appeal of O. & W. Railway.

A copy of the decision in the matter of the New York, Ontario & Western Railway Co., plaintiff-appellant, against Charles Victor Livingston, defendant-respondent, which was handed down November 15, has been received by Howard Chipp, of counsel for defendant-respondent, who argued the case at the September term of the appellate division of the supreme court. Judge A. T. Clearwater, of counsel arguing the case for plaintiff-appellant. The attorneys in the case were C. L. Anderson for plaintiff; Dean, King, Tracy & Smith of New York, for defendant-respondents.

The matter is an appeal from final order in condemnation confirming report of commissioners, filed in the Sullivan county clerk's office on the 6th day of February, 1923.

The opinion, written by Justice Hinman, which affirms the order, is as follows:

The plaintiff railroad has brought this proceeding for the condemnation of certain lands and premises, which are now and for many years past have been in the possession of the said railroad and its predecessor as a portion of its railroad property. The entire property sought to be condemned is a strip of land upwards of 3,200 feet in length and in width varying from 100 to 225 feet within the limits of which are situated the plaintiff's passenger station at Livingston Manor, its freight depot, railroad yards, two main tracks and various side tracks and generally the usual railroad equipment incidental to the running and maintenance of a railroad. These structures and equipment, graded and filled as a railroad, cover practically the entire surface of the land involved. The entire property is essentially a railroad property and nothing else and is maintained as such by the plaintiff as part of its main line for the conduct of its business as a railroad company.

The property involved has been adjudicated by this court to belong to the defendant as the result of an action in ejectment brought by the defendant against the plaintiff.

(Livingston v. N. Y. Ont. & West. Ry. Co., 193 A. D. 323.) Edward Livingston at the time of his death in 1864, resided upon a farm of 200 acres in Sullivan county. By his will he gave to his nephew, Charles Octavius Livingston, this farm of 200 acres for his life and upon his decease to the eldest son of said nephew who should then be living. In 1871, at which time the life tenant had not been married, the said life tenant made a deed which purported to convey the farm to one Morris. The predecessor of the plaintiff railroad in 1872 constructed its railroad over said farm under an agreement with Morris for the conveyance of a right of way and in 1880 said Morris by warranty deed conveyed said lands to the plaintiff, the lands thus conveyed comprising the greater part of the lands involved in this proceeding. Subsequently by mesne conveyances from the successors in interest of Morris made in 1890, 1900 and 1910, the balance of the land was acquired by the plaintiff and the plaintiff constructed additional structures and sidings thereon for the use of its railroad.

Charles Octavius Livingston, the life tenant, died in 1911, leaving the defendant here as his eldest son. In 1917 the defendant here commenced an action in ejectment against the plaintiff here, which was defended by the railroad company denying the title of the plaintiff therein and alleging title by adverse possession, claiming that the will was void for an unlawful restraint upon the alienation of the real estate devised. The defendant here was successful in that action. It was held that where a railroad company having a power to exercise the right of eminent domain instead of doing so bought the premises in reliance upon the title of the grantee of a life tenant, who had covenanted that his descendants should forever be estopped and barred from claiming title, such railroad company acquired no title against the remaindermen. It was held that if a railroad company having the power of eminent domain chose to deal with one who had only the rights of a life tenant, it could not be heard to urge an estoppel against the remaindermen for at the bottom of an estoppel lies either fraud or something which operates as such, and the remaindermen could not be said to have acted fraudulently by remaining quiet until his rights in the premises had become vested by the death of the life tenant. It was held that as the defendant had constructive notice of the remaindermen's rights, its entry upon the premises was wrongful as to him and not adverse.

After the entry of judgment in the ejectment suit which held Livingston, the defendant here, to be the absolute owner of the property, this condemnation proceeding was instituted. The plaintiff railroad company characterizes the proceedings as one to cure the title which it had attempted to acquire through the life tenant and which had been found to be invalid as to the remaindermen. The plaintiff relies upon section 17 of the Railroad Law which gives to a railroad corporation the right to acquire, by condemnation, lands necessary for such railroad and contains this provision: "And it shall also have the right of condemnation in the following cases: 1. Where title to real property has been acquired or attempted to be acquired and has been found to be invalid or defective." The claim of the railroad company is that this additional power of condemnation was intended to apply to a case where a different rule of damages should apply than in a proceeding to acquire lands de novo. The statute does not so indicate, however, and we cannot import it. There are no rules in the statute providing different standards of compensation adaptable to different classes of circumstances. The specific contention of the plaintiff is that a corporation having the power of eminent domain is not required in condemnation proceedings to pay the owner of land sought to be condemned for the value of structures erected upon the land while lawfully in possession. That proposition, however, finds no support in the statute relied upon. The right to acquire this property after judgment against the railroad in the ejectment action does not by necessary implication of the statute include the right to eliminate from the award the value of the improvements made by the railroad. The ordinary measure of compensation is the actual value of what is acquired at the time of the taking in condemnation. At the time of this taking the judgment in ejectment had found that the railroad never had any title as against the defendant Livingston. This court said in that case: "The defendant with constructive notice of the rights of the plaintiff entered into possession of the premises as it now contends adversely. Such entry was wrongful and it had not the excuse of necessity, for it at all times had the power of eminent domain and could have condemned and paid for the land which it desired." (Livingston v. N. Y. Ont. & West. Ry. Co., supra, p. 529.) Such entry was wrongful from the outset as to this remainderman. A waste was committed, contrary to the rights of this remainderman, in the conversion of farm lands into railroad lands and upon the death of the life tenant the railroad became a trespasser and has continued to be such ever since. The judgment in ejectment declared that Livingston was the absolute owner of the lands and premises, which included the structures erected upon the lands. Upon what basis in law or equity can the railroad now claim the right to condemn the land apart from the structures, when it must pay for what it acquires at the time? It is taking the property of the defendant just as much when it acquires the structures as when it takes the lands. If that is not the effect of the judgment, upon what theory could the situation be otherwise?

A review of the authorities and text writers as to the allowance for improvements by a bona fide occupant under a claim of title, where such occupant subsequently condemns the property occupied to acquire title or to cure a defective one, appears to present some difficulties when an attempt is made to apply the rules which have been formulated to the situation disclosed in the present controversy. Considering the history of the rule as to the allowance for improvements generally these seeming difficulties disappear. If controversies relating to allowance for improvements were to be decided on abstract principles of justice, it would seem that ordinarily where an occupier of land, claiming under color of title, in good faith, makes permanent improvements on the land enhancing its value, he should be allowed for the improvements where he is deprived of possession by the true owner. Such a rule, however, applied generally conflicts with all common law notions of the ownership of property which are founded on the idea that where a person intermeddles with property, real or personal, he does so at his peril. Although he is not bound to know that it belongs to another, he is bound to know whether it belongs to himself. So it follows that where an owner of property resorts to a common law court to recover possession by an action in ejectment, he recovers his property with all the improvements permanently affixed to the land and no allowance is made by way of damages or lien upon the land for the value of the improvements or the enhanced value of the lands so improved except by way of set-off to damages for mesne profits. Under the early common law, real actions, strictly so called, were for the specific recovery of lands, no damages being allowed either for the unlawful withholding or by way of set-off for improvements. (Roscoe on Actions Relating to Real Property, page 1.) A real action did not accomplish complete justice to the owner as he recovered no damages for the unlawful taking and withholding of the land. To recover such damages the owner was compelled to resort to the personal action of trespass quare clausum freight. Ejectment was evolved from this action of trespass and real actions with all their delays and complexities were abandoned. Ejectment thus became the common method of trying titles, the issue of title being the real subject of the controversy and the damages recoverable, although originally the purpose of the trespass action became merely nominal. (3 Blackstone's Commentaries, 205.) So ejectment took the place of real actions although of a mixed nature and where substantial damages were claimed by the plaintiff in ejectment, his remedy was an action of trespass for mesne profits after a recovery in ejectment, whereupon the judgment in ejectment became evidence of the title. (Roscoe on Actions Relating to Real Property, page 205.) From the nature of the remedies of the legal owner at common law and his correlative rights, it appears that there were no means whereby an occupant not having legal title but in good faith making improvements on the land could recover for the same by way of set-off or lien against the land in ejectment. If, in the circumstances of the case, he had a claim for such improvements his only method of asserting it was in the action for mesne profits by way of set-off and in such case the common law courts allowed the damages to be so diminished. The common law rule allowing the set-off in the action for mesne profits was adopted in this state and prior to the revised statutes the method of recovery was substantially as here outlined. (Jackson v. Loomis, 4 Cow. 163; Van Allen v. Rogers, 1 Johnson's Cases, 251; Jackson v. Combs, 7 Cow. 36.) By the revised statutes substantial changes were made in the procedure in ejectment. It was provided by the revised statutes (Volume 2, page 311) that instead of the action of trespass for mesne profits as theretofore used, the plaintiff, seeking to recover such profits, might within a year after the docketing of the judgment in ejectment make and file a suggestion for such claim, whereupon the ejectment action would in effect be continued. It was further provided that on the trial of the claim for mesne profits, the defendant should have the right to set-off permanent improvements to the amount of plaintiff's claim "as now allowed by law." Later the procedure was again changed but the general rule as to set-off has been continued to the present time. Section 1011 of the Civil Practice Act provides: "In an action for the recovery of real property or the possession thereof, the plaintiff, where he recovers judgment for the property, is entitled to recover as damages the rents and profits, or the value of the use and occupation, of the real property recovered, for a term not exceeding six years; but the damages shall not include the use of any improvements made by the defendant or those under whom he claims. Where permanent improvements have been made in good faith by the defendant or those under whom he claims, while holding under color of title, adversely to the plaintiff, the value thereof must be allowed to the defendant in reduction of the damages of the plaintiff, but not beyond the amount of those damages."

It therefore appears on principle that where an owner of land has a legal title sufficient to sustain an action of ejectment there can be no recovery for improvements by the occupier except by way of set-off to damages for mesne profits. The present legislative definition of the ancient technical term "mesne profits" is "the rents and profits, or the value of the use and occupation of the real property recovered." The action for mesne profits under the common law was a liberal and equitable one and allowed of every kind of equitable defense. (Wallace v. Berdell, 111 N. Y. 13.) This equitable set-off was the limit of recovery where the owner of the legal title sustained his action of ejectment at common law. This result necessarily follows by reason of the nature of the remedies administered at common law.

In an equitable action, however, the rule was different. The Court of Chancery administering a different system of remedies and being untrammelled by the strict rules of the common law, afforded a greater allowance to an occupier in some cases where he made valuable improvements in good faith, he being the

The New Hupmobile

Hupmobile Open Models Can Give You Real Closed-Car Comfort

Here, at last, is an open car with storm curtain equipment that can quickly transform it into a snug, trim and thoroughly protected closed car.

This immensely popular and exclusive feature of the new series Hupmobile touring car and roadster is one of the many reasons for the extraordinary success of these models.

By the application of an original principle of design these curtains not only assure the owner the comfort of closed car protection from rain, wind and cold, but they guarantee him at all times a clear vision and a trimness that hitherto it has not been possible to secure.

These curtains do far more than open with the doors. The secret of their comfort

Thus the curtain lights are never scratched or broken. They are kept flat by the frame—no wrinkling when stored, no sag when in use. Individual units are slipped easily and quickly into and out of their envelope compartment at the back of the front seat.

The curtains can be attached without the necessity of anyone leaving the car and in a fraction of the time ordinarily required for the adjustment of side curtains. Nothing has ever been devised to approach them in their effectiveness, their simplicity and the ease and speed with which they can be installed.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WITTY WITCH'S TALK

Old Witty Witch was such a friendly soul. Everyone in Fairyland loved her and to her delight the Fairies brought back messages to her telling her how much she was liked now by many, many children.

Witty Witch had felt sad that so many wrong ideas had gone around about her at one time. She said that children thought there were dreadful people known as witches and that they would do all sorts of horrible things.

As she dearly loves to be loved and as she is particularly fond of children just as the Fairies are it really did hurt her feelings most dreadfully. And now, since so many messages had been taken out about her and sent to children and grown ups and animals, too, the truth was around about Witty Witch and people knew that there were no bad witches about, and that Witty Witch was one of the dearest of the Fairyland creatures.

Of course Witty Witch was so named because she was so jolly and because she was always thinking up good ideas for parties and because she was merry and witty and such good fun. But this day Witty Witch asked the Breeze Brothers to come about and take some messages out for her. And the Breeze Brothers said they would be delighted to do as Witty Witch asked.

"I want to give a little talk," Witty Witch said, "and perhaps the Fairies and the Gnomes and the Brownies and all of the others will come. For some of them can help with the messages and then after my talk I want to have a big Fairyland supper party. I haven't had one in ever so long."

So first of all the Breeze Brothers went about and took Witty Witch's message that she wanted to give a talk and that she wanted to send forth messages, and that after the talk she wanted to give a supper party. Witty Witch had said she would like everyone to come at twilight that very day.

Witty Witch busied herself in getting ready for her supper party all that day. Oh, how much she did prepare! Woodland salad and Woodland ice cream and Woodland lady fingers and Woodland fruits and nuts. It was a magnificent supper and she spread a great table of moss outside her cave so that there would be plenty of room. And as twilight appeared so did all the guests.

Witty Witch welcomed them all. Old Mr. Giant came, too, and many of the smallest fairies climbed upon his shoulders and knees and settled themselves there for the evening.

Witty Witch was dressed in a new frock of old gold with a big lace shawl about her neck and shoulders. On her head she wore a great tall hat of lavender, and everyone said she had never looked so well before.

"I have something I've been thinking of for some time," said Witty Witch. "I have heard, from time to time, people speak of ghosts. I've heard them speak of haunted houses and of all such things. I have seen that if they did not altogether believe in them, still the thought of ghosts made them rather nervous."

"Now as all of you know, I do know about such things. I've had such a time trying to do away with gossip and such."

"But it does seem so wrong that people and children should be frightened by something that doesn't exist. There are no ghosts. There never were any ghosts. There never will be any ghosts."

"If people say they have seen them, it has been in bad dreams when they did not know they were asleep. But ghosts do not come in bad dreams these days. No, the Dreamland King has seen to that."

"The Dreamland King of course can't be around attending to everything all the time, and sometimes Old Bad Dreams gets in a bad dream without the Dreamland King noticing, but he has seen to it that ghosts do not ever come in dreams."

"And dear me! The thought of ghosts frightens people, and that seems such a pity when there is nothing, absolutely nothing of truth about ghosts, about ghosts."

"So send these true messages out for me, Breeze Brothers and Fairies: There are no ghosts at all anywhere, at any time. Sounds can be made by creaking woodwork, but ghosts cannot make sounds when there are no such things as ghosts to make them!"

And all promised to deliver Witty Witch's messages. Then they had the magnificent Woodland supper and ended off the party by singing lovely songs.

If one is fortunate enough to have a few mushrooms and sweetbreads, by combining the two a most tasty dish will result. Sauté the sweetbreads in a little butter until well cooked—five minutes will suffice. Melt two tablespoons of butter, add three tablespoons of flour, and pour on gradually one cupful of chicken stock. Clean, par-boil and cut into dice the sweetbreads and mushrooms, add the sweetbreads and mushrooms and season well; add one-fourth cupful of whipped cream and one-half teaspoonful of beef extract. Add a dash of lemon juice and serve in tumbler cases or covered with buttered crumbs in ramekins. If the latter, brown in the oven and serve hot from the dishes.

Date Fluff-Duff.—Stew a cupful of stoned dates until tender. Put through a colander and mix with a cupful of sugar that has been sifted with a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Beat the whites of five eggs until stiff, adding a pinch of salt, and when perfectly stiff add the yolks of two eggs and whip again. Mix lightly a little at a time with the dates and sugar and place in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle the top with finely chopped nuts and bake fifteen minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Salad Rolls.—Scald one and one-half cupfuls of milk, add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-half-teaspoonful of salt; when lukewarm add one-half yeast cake; when this is dissolved add four cupfuls of flour. Mix thoroughly and add the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Cover and let rise, turn into buttered gem pans made in small biscuit, three in each; have the pans half full. Let rise and bake in a hot oven. These are called cloverleaf rolls.

CARDINAL ENDORSES RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The following letter was received from Cardinal Dougherty by John H. Storer, one of the incorporators of the American Red Cross, and also chairman of the Waltham, Massachusetts Chapter:

My Dear Mr. Storer: Your campaign in behalf of additional membership in the Red Cross deserves to be successful. The fact that, in such a brief time, your society was able to send over ten millions of dollars for the victims of the Japanese catastrophe should thrill every American with pride, and should contribute to the increase of membership.

The American people are justly proud of a society which, in time of peace, not only mitigates suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and earthquakes, but also devises and carries out measures for preventing disasters as far as human ingenuity can forestall them, and in time of war furnishes volunteer help for the sick and wounded armies, irrespective of nationality, creed or color. It would seem that in order to gain a large membership it should suffice to make known the work of your society.

Wishing you success in your campaign, I remain, my dear Mr. Storer, very sincerely yours,
D. CARD DOUGHERTY,
Archbishop of Phila.

Deep Dish Apple Pie.

6 sour apples
1 cup molasses
1½ tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ cup water
4 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind of lemon

Pare, core and slice the apples. Arrange in a well buttered baking dish. Dot the apples with butter. Mix the flour, ginger and water with the molasses and pour over the apples. Put on the top crust and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 45 minutes.

Apple and molasses pie is the breakfast dish of some parts of New England. This is deliciously rich. It can be made with two crusts and a thinner filling.

Molasses Layer Cake.

½ cup sugar
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup molasses
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
½ cup cold coffee

Beat the egg yolks and add to the molasses, sugar and melted shortening. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add them to the molasses, mix with the coffee. Bake in well greased layer pans in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Put layers together with a chocolate or nut frosting. Water, of course may be substituted for the coffee if one prefers.

Plum Pudding.

1 cup suet
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup molasses
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup flour

½ cup chopped dates
½ cup candied lemon peel
1 cup raisins, chopped and seeded 1 cup figs
1 cup blanched almonds
Chop the suet, fruits and nuts. Stir soda into molasses and add to the milk and suet. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and spices and add to the first mixture. Sprinkle the half cup flour over the fruit and stir into the pudding with the nuts. Pour into greased pudding molds and steam for four hours.

Plum pudding is the climax of festive dinners. If made in small tin one mold can be opened easily to a meal. Serve with hard sauce or lemon sauce.

Molasses Hermits.

¾ cup molasses
½ cup fat
1½ cups flour
1½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
½ cup chopped raisins
½ cup chopped figs
½ cup chopped nuts

Heat the molasses and shortening until the latter melts. When cool add the beaten egg. Sift together the dry ingredients and combine with the liquids, reserving ¼ cup of flour to sprinkle over the chopped fruit. Add the fruit and nuts and mix well. If the dough is not stiff enough to drop from the spoon and keep its shape in the oven add more flour, but be wary of too stiff a dough.

Drop from the tip of a spoon on to a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Molasses and dried fruits are sweetening agents of these tempting hermits.

Molasses Peanut Brittle.

1 cup fine granulated sugar
1 cup molasses
1 heaping tablespoon butter
½ cup water

Stir and cook in a saucepan until the candy will crack easily when tested in cold water. Take the saucepan from the fire and add 1½ cups of roasted Spanish peanuts, ½ teaspoon of salt, ½ teaspoon of soda. Stir these through the candy rapidly and spread very thin on a well greased platter or marble.

Vain Man.

It is painful the solitude that is felt that a man may become puffed with pride if you give him a compliment.

holder of the legal title but being liable to be dispossessed at the suit of the equitable owner. In this respect the Court of Equity followed the rule of the civil law which permitted the possessor of property of another to have payment for improvements after deducting from the value thereof a fair compensation for the rents or use of the property during the time he occupied it, where such possessor had erected buildings or made other improvements on the lands in good faith supposing himself to be the owner. (2 American Jurist, 294.) In determining therefore the right to compensation for improvements the first inquiry is whether they were made by the legal or equitable owner. If made by the legal owner of lands to which another is equitably entitled, the latter when he resorts to a Court of Equity to enforce his equitable rights, will ordinarily be required to do equity by reimbursing the legal owner for the enhanced value of the lands by reason of permanent improvements made thereon by the person occupying under defective legal title provided the occupier made the improvements in good faith. But where the legal owner has title sufficient to enable him to pursue his rights and recover the property at law by ejectment, the occupier cannot recover for improvements beyond the mesne profits. In Putnam v. Rice, 6 Paige's Chancery, 330, at page 401, the Chancellor in discussing the right to an allowance for permanent improvements said: "This principle of natural equity is constantly acted upon in this court where the legal title is in the person who has made the improvements in good faith, and where the equitable title is in another, who is obliged to resort to this court for relief. The principle in such cases acts upon the party as a complainant, to ask equity, must himself be willing to do what is equitable. I have not, however, been able to find any case, either in this country or in England, wherein the court of chancery has assumed jurisdiction to give relief to a complainant who has made improvements upon land the legal title to which was in the defendant, where there has been neither fraud nor acquiescence on the part of the latter after he had knowledge of his legal rights. I do not, therefore, feel myself authorized to introduce a new principle into the law of this court, without the sanction of the legislature, which principle in its application to future cases might be productive of more injury than benefit. If it is desirable that such a principle should be introduced into the law of this state, for the purpose of giving the bona fide possessor a lien upon the legal title for the beneficial improvements he has made, it would probably be much better to give him a remedy by action at law, where both parties could have the benefit of a trial by jury, than to embarrass the title to real estate with the expense and delay of a proceeding in equity. In all such cases, the rule which has been followed in this state, (Matter of DiLave, 17 N. Y. 50; Matter of Wood, 59 N. Y. 46; Wood v. Rosen, 133 N. Y. 515; Scheraga v. Wood, 133 N. Y. 515; Thomas v. Evans, 145 N. Y. 512; Talm v. March, 54 N. Y. 599; Down v. Condon, 23 N. Y. 122; Wallace v. Berdell, 111 N. Y. 13.) In the case at bar defendant here prior to the condemnation proceedings pursued his remedy at common law in ejectment and was successful. It was not necessary for him to come into equity for any purpose. Since he obtained a judgment at law upon his legal title and the railroad company in the ejectment suit failed to set off its claim for improvements, it cannot do it now. The fact that an occupier of land has the right to eminent domain gives it the right to take the property upon making compensation. What a railroad corporation takes it must pay for as the rights and interests of the parties exist at the time of the taking. The railroad is now taking lands and structures which have been held to be the absolute property of the defendant. Assuming that the railroad company at the time the ejectment action was brought, might have brought an action in equity staying the ejectment action and asking that the railroad company obtain some relief with relation to the improvements made by it upon the ground of fraud or acquiescence upon the part of the remainderman, the fact is that the railroad company did not do so. Moreover it would seem that the railroad would not have been successful in so doing. I remain a firm and the structures were not adapted to a farm, adding little or nothing to its value as such. In the present case the property acquired has no relation to a farm and for the major part has had no relation for fifty years. Nor is it a part of any property destined, from its character, to have been railroad property and nothing reasonably to consider the question of the adaptability of the structures to the land as of the question existing fifty years ago when the railroad entered upon the land as part of a farm. For many years the narrow strip sought to be acquired has constituted a railroad right of way through a large village. During all this time the land has not been adapted to farming purposes but peculiarly to railroad purposes. The defendant is entitled to a consideration of this peculiar adaptability for the purposes for which the land is being taken in fixing the value of the land. (Matter of New York, Westchester & Boston R. Co., 151 App. Div. 50, 58; Matter of N. Y. L. & W. R. Co., 27 Hun, 116; Matter of L. I. R. R. Co., 3 Hun, 613; Matter of Gilroy, 85 Hun, 124) and is entitled to the value of the structures if they are adaptable to and enhance the value of the land for the purposes of the condemnor. (Matter of City of New York, 193 N. Y. 84.) The commissioners have viewed the land and premises and have fixed apparently moderate values well within the figures presented by the witnesses both as to the land and the structures and the measure of compensation adopted seems to be fully sustained by authority. (Matter of City of New York, 193 N. Y. 84.) The order appealed from should be affirmed, with costs.

Marshall Winchell of this village, and Carl Townsend of Allaben, left town last week and started on an automobile trip to Florida.
People here regret to learn that J. S. Pessenar, who rented the Pine Hill Hotel for the winter, has been obliged to close the house and return to High Point Lodge, at Broadhead.
Mrs. Leslie Eignor has rented her cottage on Maple avenue to Frank DeSilva, the principal of our public school.
Residents here are glad to learn that Mrs. Paul Clifford, who has been seriously ill for some time past, has so far recovered as to be able to be out.
J. E. Tuttle, of New Kingston, was a business visitor at Pine Hill last Friday.
Harry France was in New York over Sunday.
It is understood that Jack Wallace and family will spend the winter in Florida.

GROUP PSYCHOLOGY WASHBURN THEME

At Lecture Before Clubwomen Wednesday—Habit And Instinct Of Imitation Work Against Each Other.

There was the usual large attendance at the lecture on Social Psychology given by Dr. Washburn at Wiltwyck Inn before the Monday and Atherton Clubs on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Washburn devoted a good part of the afternoon to a consideration of what might be termed "Social Psychology of the Group."

Last week she had begun to consider what influences hold together groups of individuals, the last influence being mentioned as common economic need. She started in on Wednesday afternoon with a consideration of a common danger as another very important influence tending to keep the group together; the fear of being attacked from without; as, for instance, the recent war.

Since social instincts are innate ways of acting in reference to other creatures, some of those ways of acting make for a sacrifice of self to the group as in the family; others make for the individual standing out from the group and they are the self-exhibiting and the fighting instincts. Among humans these instincts which lead to the submergence of the individual are generally weakening, on the whole, for man is imperfectly social or gregarious.

It was shown that people in groups influence each other by imitation, by suggestion; by reason. The most potent influence is that which is unintentional. We share with the lower animals the imitating of physical behavior. But that is unimportant compared to our imitation of others' beliefs and desires; of other people's minds. There is one force that works against imitation and that is force of habit. Youth is the imitating period, when another is imitated. This is weakened into habit or, the imitating of ourselves as we grow older.

The two different forms of imitation are custom and fashion—"custom spreads downward into time but not outward into space; fashion spreads outward into space but not downward into time."

In fashion-governed communities youth rules, as in America where we do not imitate our elders but move outward into space. Dr. Washburn asked "How about new copies being set for imitation?" Inventions are those new copies. They are the results of conflicts between beliefs and desires. When the conflicts are between beliefs, scientific theories are the result; when between desires, some machine will be invented. An invention must, however, result from a conflict carried on in a single mind, which must be capable of analyzing the problem; must be stored with information on the subject, and must be capable of holding together all parts of the problem.

Then Dr. Washburn took up the subject of suggestion. Direct suggestion was shown to be much less effective than indirect, especially as direct suggestion is apt to rouse the fighting instinct in the one to whom the suggestion is made. Several experiments in indirect suggestion as worked out in the laboratories at Yale and Vassar were described. All this had to do with normal suggestibility. At the next lecture, Dr. Washburn will lead into the realm of abnormal suggestibility, and abnormal behavior in some of its social aspects.

Because of Thanksgiving next week, there will be no lecture until the following week, December 5.

HAMILTON CHILD PRAYS TO LIVE UNTIL MONDAY.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Camden, N. J., Nov. 22.—Life and hope ebb fast for 13-year-old Helen Hamilton today. She is dying of leakage of the heart.

"Mother, when I die, let me wear my wrist watch—and let Susie go with me," Helen said this morning. Susie is Helen's favorite doll.

The child's plea followed a visit of two New York heart specialists, sent by a sympathetic friend, in a last effort to prolong the child's life until next Monday—her birthday. "After Monday, I don't care," the girl told the physicians. The specialists refused to perform a blood transfusion operation previously planned. "The shock would kill her," they said.

The Hamilton girl's plight became known last week when she and her widowed mother were evicted from their tiny room home because the sick child was "a bother" and because her case resulted in "too much publicity."

Neighbors took the child in. She survived the shock of moving. Today the girl asked that a calendar be pinned beside her bed. The days have been marked off. A circle marks Monday.

"If I can only live until then," is the child's prayer.

Same Old Way.
It's queer in what a small, almost inaudible voice worry speaks in the morning and how stentorian it is through the night hours.

FARMER RAISES FLOWERS TO GIVE AWAY TO SICK

Michigan Man Consecrates His Life to Growing Posies for Free Distribution to Hospitals.

Believing that the greatest service any person can give to his fellow man is that of spreading cheer and happiness, A. H. Allen of Muskegon, the largest producer of gladioli in western Michigan, has consecrated his life to the raising of flowers for free distribution to hospitals, charitable institutions and public buildings in order that he may extend his message of human kindness to all who look upon his offerings.

About fifteen years ago Mr. Allen became imbued with the idea of serving humanity. Always the lover of flowers, he decided to use them as his medium for showing his love for others.

The Allen farm has eleven acres devoted to the culture of gladioli. During the flowering season the tract is a riot of every color and color combination conceivable. In all there are ninety-seven varieties of this popular flower, each with its distinctive coloring and its own characteristics.

Mr. Allen, during the flowering season, comes downtown each day with a supply of blossoms, makes his rounds, and leaves bouquets at the hospitals and in other places where he believes they will be appreciated.

"The sight of flowers is the greatest tonic for persons who are ill or discouraged that the world has ever produced," Mr. Allen said. "I have proof that flowers do speak a language of gladness. Every morning when I come into Muskegon with an armful of flowers strangers speak to me on the street. After I have delivered the blossoms and am empty handed no one pays any attention to me. It was the flowers that the strangers spoke to before."

On the Allen farm this year are 120,000 gladioli bulbs in blossom. The grower is at work on several new varieties, several years being required to develop a new species.

LESS SPANISH QUICKSILVER

Large Withdrawals for Sale Made From Warehouses This Year.

Withdrawals for sale of quicksilver from Spanish warehouses in the first seven months of this year exceeded by a considerable margin the number of flasks produced or entered in warehouses during the same period last year. Consul H. A. Boncher, Barcelona, reports to the Department of Commerce that figures supplied by the board of directors of the Mines of Almaden and Arrazanes show the withdrawals to have reached 84,800 flasks of 34.5 kilograms each, while the production and entries in warehouses amounted to only 23,683 flasks.

In May, June and July the figures show, there were marked declines in both withdrawals and entries, compared with the first four months of the year. From a high point of 9,065 flasks in March, withdrawals slumped to a low of 440 in June. As for production and entries into warehouses, the highest total, 5,794 flasks was reached in March, and the lowest, 185 flasks, was reached in July. Stocks on hand decreased from 24,994 flasks on Jan. 31 to 17,683 flasks on July 31. Sales values dropped from 2,270,608 pesetas (about 14 cents each at current exchange rates) in January to a low of 129,150 pesetas in June. Prices have fallen since the end of June, when Spanish quicksilver was quoted at 340 pesetas a flask, to 297 pesetas. The reduction was made by the board of directors of the concern mentioned.

HORSE PAYS 1,700 TO 1

India Merchant Makes Big Winning by Chance Bet.

Mr. Khambatta, a merchant of Bombay, India, having idle time on his hands, recently wandered out to the races with the idea that he might put down a bet if anything looked good to him.

He saw Kletitor in the second race, and the records showed that not a single person had backed him, even for place. Mr. Khambatta bought a ticket to win, paying 10 rupees. The animal came in one and three-quarter lengths in front.

Mr. Khambatta was given 17,000 rupees, over 1,700 to one, after the mathematicians had spent an hour working out a correct answer to the odds of the totalizer.

PUTS BAN ON ONE-MAN CARS

Oakland, Cal., Resolves to Do Away With Them.

The municipality of Oakland, Cal., has entered upon an avowed campaign to "put the one-man street cars out of business." Big city-owned motor busses appeared in front of the city hall with the announcement that they would take passengers anywhere a one-man street car would take them and for one cent less fare. In addition, the ordinance against jitney busses using the main streets was suspended.

The city recently ordered the one-man cars off the street on the ground that they were undesirable.

YOUR BODY NEEDS STRENGTH OF IRON

To withstand winter storms, to build up the full vigor of your body, you need iron. Thirty years ago physicians began to prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan because it provided a most beneficial form of iron which was easily digested and did not affect the teeth. In all these years the formula of Gude's has not been changed. Now is the season when you especially need it. Your druggist has it in both liquid and tablet form. Free Trial Tablets. ## CAR LOADINGS CONTINUE HEAVY

1,035,776 Loaded During Week Ended November 3, Twenty-Fourth Week In Which Loadings Have Exceeded Million.

Freight loadings in the week ended November 3 totaled 1,035,776 cars according to the American Railway Association. This was an increase of 55,925 cars over the corresponding week last year, and an increase of 198,200 cars over the corresponding week in 1921.

The week of November 3 was the twentieth week in twenty-four consecutive weeks in which loading of revenue freight has exceeded the million car mark. Shipments in the four other weeks were curtailed by holidays.

Due to the usual seasonal decline in the demands for transportation, the total for the week of November 3 was 38,180 cars less than that of the previous week this year. The decline is probably seasonal.

Loading of all classes of revenue freight in the Eastern district showed an increase of one per cent over the corresponding week last year, while in the Southern district, there was an increase of 8.2 per cent. In the Western district, an increase of 11.2 per cent was reported.

"Pressed Wood" as Fuel.

It is said that in California "pressed wood" is a fuel that has become more or less popular. Fuel for domestic purposes has always commanded high prices in southern California, and consequently some one perceived the opportunity to win wealth from waste by utilizing a part of the great quantities of shavings and sawdust that is annually thrown away or at best used to poor advantage in sawmills, planing mills and similar establishments. So this ingenious person invented a machine for pressing shavings and sawdust into molds. A string through the center of the mold helps hold the material together, and the heavy pressure to which it is subjected is all that is necessary to accomplish the rest.

Correction.

The man was before the court on the charge of being drunk and disorderly on the previous evening.

The policeman who had arrested him had given evidence and the magistrate asked the prisoner if he had any questions to ask the witness.

"Yes," said the man. "If you are so certain of the details of the case why don't you call your fellow policemen to corroborate you?"

"There's only one constable in the village," replied the witness.

"But I saw two myself last night," said the indignant visitor.

"That is just the charge against you," retorted the policeman, with a smile.

He May Have Been Extra Weary.

"You may like to know," said the landlord when he was making out his bill, "that General Lafayette once slept in the bed you occupied last night."

"Did he?" the motoring tourist replied. "He must have been some sleeper."

BILLIONS DUE U. S. FROM 10 NATIONS

Number of Indebted Countries Do Not Even Acknowledge Their Obligations to Uncle Sam.

Washington.—The American debt funding commission met recently and approved the form of its annual report to congress, which contained the significant statement that the commission "hopes to obtain further adjustments with the various debtor governments at the earliest possible date."

While there was no elaboration on the expression from any member of the commission, the statement was regarded in many quarters as the first hint from official circles that another communication may be sent to debtor nations advising that the American government awaits their funding proposals.

The report recites the negotiations and settlements with Great Britain and Finland and the full liquidation of Cuba's debt, but as for the others little progress is reported.

Owe U. S. Over $7,000,000,000.

The commission now has to deal with debts of foreign countries amounting to $5,970,117,427, on which interest amounting to $1,058,457,478, has accrued.

The combined total of interest and principal owed by the several governments is given as:

Armenia	14,263,194
Austria	27,584,065
Belgium	446,782,734
Czechoslovakia	109,423,244
Estonia	18,738,723
France	3,917,335,574
Greece	18,225,000
Hungary	1,988,286
Italy	1,973,878,123
Lithuania	6,032,478
Lithuania	30,168
Lithuania	5,577,952
Poland	151,822,315
Rumania	42,818,878
Russia	257,242,024
Serbia	60,992,592

Certain Nations "Unheard From."

It was disclosed by the report that the commission has not been in touch "in any way" with the governments of Armenia, Austria, Greece, Lithuania or Russia. The original loan to Russia was $192,001,207, made during the war, but nothing has been heard from that government since. As for Austria, Secretary Mellon has granted consent for a twenty-year postponement under authority of a senate resolution and therefore no principal or interest will come from that source for some eighteen years more.

Going into detail of the status of the debts with the other governments, the report says the Belgian ambassador expressed the hope in June, 1922, that he could on his return from Belgium lay before the commission definite proposals for the consolidation of the indebtedness of Belgium. Except for certain informal discussions, the report adds, no proposals or suggestions have been as yet received. The discussions concerned the consolidation and the exact status of the Belgian debt.

No Money From France.

"Representatives of the Czechoslovak government," the report continues, "who came to Washington last May, have returned to Prague after bringing about an agreement as to the amount of the debt of their country to the American relief administration and the United States grain corporation, but leaving for further discussion the final settlement with the War department and the United States shipping board. It is understood they will return to the United States this autumn to continue the negotiations."

"The government of Estonia is expected to appoint representatives to negotiate with the commission shortly. The government of France sent a representative to negotiate with the commission in the summer of 1922. After a full discussion and the presentation of complete figures, the French representative returned to France to confer with his government."

No further proposals or suggestions have been received since his departure.

This Cat Insists on

Sharing Nest With Hen

Middletown, N. Y.—Charles S. Hulze of Goshen has a cat that for a while lived in a chicken house, sharing a nest with a hen. Three kittens came. After a few days Hulze gave cat and kittens to a farmer living two miles away, because of lack of room in the nest. The mother cat weaned the kittens, left them on the farm and returned to share the nest with the hen.

Becomes Grandfather of His Own Children

Pittsburgh.—By virtue of his marriage to his mother-in-law, Charles E. Miller of Westchester, Pa., is grandfather of his own children.

His bride is Mrs. Laura Douglas Tyler of Frederick, Md. She is fifty-one and Miller is forty-eight. She is tall. Miller is four feet and eight inches tall. She weighs 170 pounds. Miller weighs 113 pounds. She has been married twice before. Miller has only one previous marriage to his credit, but he has six children and she only four.

Hilarity and Solemnity.

A harmless hilarity and a buoyant cheerfulness are not infrequent companions of genius, and we are never more decided than when we mistake gravity for greatness, solemnity for science, and pomposity for erudition.

JUST FUN

SLIGHTLY NERVOUS

An English barrister, after a particularly trying day, came home with his nerves on edge, and at once sought refuge in his own study, well away from the noises of the household machinery.

He sat down by his fire and was gradually getting calmed down when the cat, which had been sitting there, too, got up slowly and walked across the room.

The master turned on her and said, indignantly: "Now, what are you stamping around here for?"

Why Does It?

The head of the office was in a thoroughly bad temper and, moreover, he had just broken his glasses, and could only read with difficulty the figures the clerk put before him. "Just look at this 9," he roared. "It's exactly like a 7." "The figure is a 7, sir," said the clerk. "Then," roared the old man, "why does it look like a 9?"—Yorkshire Post.

BENT OVER.

She used to have a fine carriage. Yes? But now she has that automobile hunch.

Can Depend on Him. "Go to the ant and thou shalt learn," said The Stinky Hiram Dunker. "Eno use," the youth replied, "she's broke. But I'll go to an uncle."

Curbing Their Eloquence.

First Attorney—Your honor, unfortunately, I am opposed by an unmitigated scoundrel. Second Attorney—My learned friend is such a notorious liar—Judge (sharply)—The counsel will kindly confine their remarks to such matters as are in dispute.

A Ripping Time.

"How do you feel?" asked the physician, who had been called to attend the seamstress. "Oh, sew, sew, but seem worse today and have stitches in my side." The doctor hemmed, and told her she would mend soon.

Sympathetic.

"Is your husband good to you, Liz?" "Good to me? Yes, sir; yes, sir! Dat husband o' mine jes' spends all his time sympathizin' with me becuz I has to work so hard."

A Victim of Science.

Beggar (at door)—Yes, lady, science demands ninnies a victim. I myself am such a victim. Lady—Poor man! How was that? Beggar—Yes, they got me on the fingerprints.

MEAN THING.

Mr. Dauber said my face was classic. What is classic? Oh, most anything old.

Learning to Swim.

Wife had called at the office. "And what," asked indulgent hubby, "does my angel want today?" "A pair of water-wings."

Sympathetic.

"I once knew a man who went hungry in order to buy feed for his horse." "I can understand his feelings. The other day I reduced my lunch to a single hot-dog sandwich in order to buy gasoline."

Not So Stupid.

"The met several other people from your city," said the Bostonian, "and every one of them said: 'Where is it at?' 'Where is what at?' demanded the New Yorker."

An Inventor.

"Pa, what is an inventor?" "An inventor, my boy, is usually a man who has thought up a way to do with machinery some task that he is tired of doing himself."

Feet and Shoes.

Mr. Oldie—I am a self-made man. Mr. I began life as a barefoot boy. Kennard—Well, I wasn't born with shoes on, either.

Costly Aids.

"It keeps me poor." "What does?" "Trying to make other people think I'm rich."

Iron Clothes With Feet.

In Catron men employed in the native tailoring shops iron clothes with their feet. A solid block of wood rests on the top of the iron and on this the man places one foot, guiding the iron by means of a long handle.

THE PITY OF IT

The tragedian came bursting into the smoking room of the theatrical club.

"Hurrah, hurrah!" he shouted loudly. "I've just signed a three-year contract! Ten pounds a week and all expenses paid by the manager!"

"I'm jolly glad to hear that, old man!" said one of the members, jumping to his feet. "When do you open?" "September 1, in Cape Town," was the answer.

The friend shook his head dismally. "The ostrich," he said, in pitying tones, "lays an egg weighing from two to four pounds."—London Answers.

WOES OF A NEUTRAL

The Guest: Bad business, eh? Why, your hotel is full and I've known you to make money with half the number of guests. The Landlord: Yes, but those were American tourists. These you see now are nothing but a lot of busted kings.

Mary's Little Hen.

Mary had a little hen. But she was very queer. She laid like fun when eggs were cheap. And quit when they were dear.

Vacationing.

"Next year," said Jones, "next year I'm going to take a real rest; that's me."

"Going to the country?" "No sir! Going to stick my car in the shop for overhauling, scuttle my launch, send the dog to a kennel, ship my wife to the seashore, put on my overalls and stay home."

Imported Humor.

Reported conversation between two Englishmen:

"I put some turnip seed in the ground," said one, "and up came some cabbage." "That's nothing," replied his companion. "I buried a cat and up came a sanitary inspector."

On the Safe Side.

Husband—My wife does nothing but ask for money—it's $5 one day, $3 the next, and so on. Solicitor—What does she do with all this money? Husband—Nothing. I don't give it to her.

THE REASON.

For breath our gas bills never pause. Those sprinters fast and feet. Perhaps they run so fast because they have so many feet.

Same Old Human Nature. We fear no gold-brick game today. No green-zouls man can bring dismay. But—whisper—Jays must have their larks. A lot of us bought German marks.

Musical Education. "Yes, my daughter's musical education was a profitable venture," said father. "Really?" questioned a friend. "Yes, I managed to buy the houses on either side of my own for about half their value."

Saving Trouble. Motorist (after hitting pedestrian)—You were trying to cross in the middle of the block. Pedestrian—What difference does it make? If I cross at the corner you will knock me into the middle of the block, so we might as well begin there.

Something for All. "So you don't approve of Sunday baseball. Don't you think the people should be allowed to enjoy themselves on the Sabbath?" "Aren't they doing that now? The rich have their golf clubs and the poor have their automobiles."

EXONERATED. You come home all hours of the night. No, my dear, only one hour each night.

Art and Nature. A people by dissection struck. Exclaimed, "We revel in hard luck. We have no earthquakes ready-made. Let's wreck the land without their aid."

Unorganized. "How's the new minister getting along?" "All right, so far. You see he hasn't been here long enough yet for us to decide which faction is going to be for him and which against him."

Making Up for Lost Business. Patient—Twenty dollars to have two teeth pulled? Great Scott! I usually pay about ten. Dentist—Yes, but you relied so much that the patients in the waiting room all left.

Seasoning Wood. A process for seasoning wood, which gives results in 20 days which would naturally take several years, is said to have been invented in France and consists of subjugating the wood to the action of a current of air containing ozone.

HENRY SMITH DEAD; WELL KNOWN IN KINGSTON

Henry Smith of New York city, deputy controller of that city, who was a member of Ashokan Condemnation Commission No. 3, died suddenly of heart failure Tuesday morning at his home, No. 362 Riverside Drive. It is said his death was hastened by shock and excitement caused by the news of the decision of the United States Supreme court which affirmed the sentence by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer imposed two years ago on Controller Charles L. Craig of imprisonment for sixty days for contempt of court for criticizing the action of the court in connection with the appointment of a receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system.

Mr. Smith's associates on Ashokan Commission No. 3 were Judge George H. Smith of Monticello and the late Joseph J. Hasbrouck of New Paltz, and during his visits to Kingston he made many friends in this city and throughout Ulster county. He resigned from the commission to become a park commissioner of New York city to which post he was appointed by Mayor George B. McClellan. The appointment was recommended by the late Mayor William F. Gaynor, who wrote concerning him: "It is very seldom, or at all events, has been seldom in the past, that a man of his eminent fitness gets an appointment to office."

Mr. Smith had been deputy controller since December 23, 1920, at a salary of $8,500 a year, which was to have been increased to $10,000 on January first next. He was a son of the late Henry Smith of Albany, who was regarded as one of the leading lawyers of his time and who at one time was district attorney of Albany county and speaker of the assembly in 1870. He was educated in the Albany Law School and also studied in his father's law office at Albany before going to New York city to practice.

Secretary of War Weeks has approved the plans of the Army Air Service for a flight around the world by a squadron of Douglas World Cruisers, all-metal airplanes now under construction, each capable of carrying fuel for a 2,000-mile flight. It is believed the flight may be made in 30 days from the start, which will take place in 1924. The flight will start from Washington to Seattle, Wash., northward to Alaska and across the Alaskan Islands, touching on Japanese insular possessions, and thence to points in the Far East. The flight will be continued across Europe to England, Greenland, Labrador, along the Canadian coast to Montreal and Quebec and back to Washington. The above photograph shows the tentative route.

Besides law, Mr. Smith was deeply interested in art. He had a valuable collection of paintings in his home and was regarded as a leading authority on American painters. He was a close friend of the late Frederick Remington, the painter, and used to take long trips with him. He was over six feet in height and of fine appearance. He possessed a keen sense of humor and was a most interesting talker. He had a strong sense of fairness and was an indefatigable worker.

POLITICS CURSE OF VETERANS' BUREAU

Perverted All Branches of Work For Care of Disabled Soldiers, Report Volunteer Investigators.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 22.—A universal complaint against the use of political influence in the care of disabled soldiers featured a dozen reports filed today with the senate investigation committee by volunteer committees which investigated affairs of the United States veterans' bureau in every state.

The reports practically without exception upbraided the use of political influence in their districts, describing conditions as "a disgrace," "betrayal of trust" and "a curse to the veterans' bureau." These committees were composed of prominent lawyers, physicians and business men in each state, whose opinion and scores were sought.

While members of the committee studied the reports, they also continued working on their formal report of the investigation which will be submitted to congress in December.

"The public investigation just conducted has centered the interest of the country on conditions in the veterans' bureau," said Senator Duffie, Republican, Nevada, member of the committee. "It has revealed the need of a more systematic consideration for the disabled veterans and for plugging the holes that have caused waste in expenditures. At least it will shake the veterans' bureau out of the rut into which it has fallen. Our report will suggest corrections in the veterans' law and new methods of operation which would correct conditions which led to complaints."

Hundreds of recommendations were made in the volunteer reports. Among the more applicable were:

1. Elimination of political influence in care of the disabled.
  2. Creation of an office of "public defender" in the bureau to safeguard the interests of wounded soldiers in compensation and insurance suits.
  3. Increased efficiency in medical and executive personnel by an increase in salaries to attract a better class of men.
  4. Reorganization of the rating system to eliminate injustices to the men and "gold brick" claims against the government.
  5. Recodification of all veterans' laws to eliminate contradictions and provisions which work a hardship on the veterans.
- The principal complaint, however, was the volunteer reports, was against political influence.
- "Political interference has been one of the curses of the veterans' bureau," said one report from an eastern state. It has produced the selection of improper hospital sites and unfit schools, the appointment of inefficient personnel and the granting of disability ratings to men who have no right to compensation and the selection of unfit specialists."

CHARGE BOOTLEG RING BEAT U. S. OUT OF $2,000,000.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Charges that the up-state bootleg ring has defrauded the federal government of more than $2,000,000 in the last twelve months and that it is sufficiently powerful to influence bankers and hinder federal investigation, were made today by Jesse W. Clarke, collector of internal revenue, in charge of the 21st district headquarters here.

At the same time Collector Clarke announced that federal indictments against ten prominent Syracuseans who are reputed to have made fortunes through the illegal sale of liquor, would be sought at the December term of the United States district court at Utica.

"Not only have the Syracuse bootleggers succeeded in cleaning up staggering sums, but we hold evidence that they partially control banks in this section," Collector Clarke declared. "This is only evidence that we attempt to probe their hidden fortunes. The bankers will not cooperate with us. They fear our investigations may deprive them of some of their wealthiest depositors. I know of at least twenty fraud cases."

DR. COOK RECEIVES JAIL SENTENCE

Fourteen Years in Penitentiary For Oil Friends—Weeps As Patrol Wagon Hauls Him Away—30 Associates Sentenced.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 22.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Polar explorer and self-proclaimed petroleum technician and graduate physician, accompanied by twenty of his petroleum exploitation associates, today faced a 14 year term of imprisonment. It is but a matter of days, his advisers confide, until he will be in Fort Leavenworth penitentiary.

Cook withstood the verbal lashings of Federal Judge Killets without a muscle quivering in his ashen face nor his stooped figure—but when he emerged from the court room to find a patrol wagon awaiting his conveyance, he displayed his first genuine symptoms of despairing emotion and wept bitterly.

Cook was taken to a cell in the city jail.

Today he was at home to no one. Throughout his trial he has always held a glad word for his acquaintances and newspapermen. This morning he declined an interview with his attorney, former United States Senator James Bailey.

Nineteen of his former associates, seven of whom had entered pleas of guilty at the outset of the oil fraud trial five weeks ago, were occupying adjoining cells, but they had no words of cheer for him, not even a civil "good morning."

Attorney Bailey announced he would immediately file notice of appeal. Several other attorneys, representatives, co-defendants, asserted they would take similar action.

Actual sentence passed upon Dr. Cook on 12 counts of using the mails to defraud, totaled 14 years and nine months with an additional fine of $12,000.

JAILED FOR DISTURBING FUNERAL OF PICKELNY BOY.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Nov. 22.—As the Irving Pickelny funeral procession was passing Delancy and Suffolk streets Wednesday, Victor Abraham, 26, a farinard of Ellenville, N. Y., inquired in a loud voice: "What's going on?" and "Who do you think you are anyhow?" Detective Nammack of the Clinton street station cautioned him to keep quiet, but Abraham kept on, it is charged, and was arrested for disorderly conduct.

In Essex Market court Magistrate Overwager informed the farmer that he thought five days in jail would teach him to show proper respect for the dead. Abraham jumped to his feet and said that would not be enough, that he must have thirty days. Detective Nammack thought that was too much, but Magistrate Overwager yielded to the wishes of the defendant.

GIANTS WANT TO DISTRIBUTE SERIES EXPENSE.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Nov. 22.—It was indicated today that officials of the New York Giants will make a determined attempt at the Chicago meetings to saddle some of the expense of conducting the world's series on rival clubs, sharing in profits. The proposition, it is said, is to be put before the joint meeting of the majors next month.

The Giants' profit on the last series is said to have been only $80,000 in spite of the fact that more than a million was taken in at the gate. Teams finishing second and third in both leagues shared in the proceeds, but were not required to shoulder any of the expense.

Orchard Information

Real Purpose and Idea

Back of Farm Orchards

Coming right down to brass tacks, the real purpose and idea back of the farm orchard is to supply the farmer and his family with fruit in its season, and an additional supply to put away for winter. Further than this, the farm orchard does not, as a rule, go. When the orchard is large enough to supply fruit to sell, then it begins to edge over into the commercial side and out of the home orchard class. It begins to assume the importance of a sideline, and one to which too often the farmer cannot give enough attention to get paying results. Thus the spraying is left undone or partially done, perhaps, in the rush of other work. The same is true of other things about the orchard. Early, easily prevented invasions of disease or insects might be avoided but for neglect. Therefore it is generally said and conceded by those who know what a farmer is up against, that about the best thing he can do is to keep his orchard down to real home orchard size. It will not require more than twenty-five or thirty trees of properly assorted varieties of apples, cherries, and peaches, where they grow, to provide plenty for the average family where family use only is required. More will simply be wasted, or else time will have to be taken to care for it which most farmers either cannot or will not give to a sideline.

When a person goes to planning for just the number of trees he is to need for his own use, he should pay pretty close attention to varieties. A home proposition isn't like the commercial.

A commercial orchardist is after something of which to raise a lot, and sell. A home orchard needs only to grow enough for its owner to eat, but that enough must be first quality stuff, stuff that has good flavor and good keeping qualities too. Just what assortment should be used will depend very much on where the planter lives, but a few general suggestions are in order even at that.

In the first place, don't go too strong on early sorts. One or two summer apple trees are enough until the fall apples begin to bear; a couple or three fall apples will take care of the family until the winter sorts are in season. Then if you have chosen the right sorts of winter varieties you will have apples until the trees bloom again the following spring—maybe longer—provided, remember, you take care of your trees and fruit right.

While most of all of them should be winter apples you can plant some of all the best varieties that do well in your own locality. Where Jonathan, Grimes, Roman Stem, Winesap and any of the other good eating or cooking varieties do well, plant a couple or three trees of each. If the season isn't favorable to one, perhaps another will make up for it by doing better. It's a pretty good idea to look around among the orchards of your neighbors. If there are some varieties that especially please your palate, plant a couple of trees like them, or, if you have good healthy trees you do not care for, topwork them to suit yourself.

In any case, remember not to bite off more than you can chew. If you are willing to take care of a hundred trees, well and good. Plant them. But if you have time for only twenty trees, do not plant more. It is a waste of land and a waste of money.

Common Scale Insects Affecting Apple Trees

There are three common scales which affect trees—the San Jose scale, the oyster-shell scale and the scurfy scale. The San Jose is probably the most common and most destructive. This scale is about the size of a pinhead. They form sort of a crust on the branches. Trees badly covered with these crusts should be sprayed late during the fall, and then again early in the spring. The oyster-shell scale is so called because it resembles an oyster shell, and these also form crusts on the branches. The scurfy scale gives the bark a peculiar scurfy appearance, and both of these as well as the San Jose should be sprayed with a strong lime-sulphur solution when the trees are dormant.

About the only effective way to kill the round-headed borer is to dig it out with knife or a wire. There is another protection that should be given orchards during early December. Field mice and rabbits are liable to play havoc with young trees during the winter when feed is scarce. The best protection is made by wrapping the lower portion of the trunk of the trees with building paper, tying it securely. Or, dirt piled up around the trees 10 or 12 inches high will do much towards keeping mice away. These protections should be provided before heavy snow comes.

Renew Strawberry Bed.

The old strawberry bed may be renewed by mowing the foliage, raking it off or burning it quickly on the bed, then hoeing out or plowing all but a strip about one foot wide of the bed, and letting the new plants take the space.

Dust Mulch Helps Crops.

Remember that a dust mulch, resulting from frequent cultivation is next to a good rain. Stir the soil and hasten "comking up" of your vegetable seed.

Butterfly Egg Markings.

Eggs of the butterfly vary, some being spherical, others conical, turban-shaped, or cylindrical, says Nature Magazine. The surface of the egg is often beautifully sculptured, the pattern being formed by series of raised or depressed dots or lines.

Horticultural Facts

Oklahoma Expert Gives Plan for Planting Trees

In case the soil is not prepared upon the receipt of the trees, they can be heeled in. Heeling consists of digging a trench and burying the roots of the trees with the tops tilted to the south. The handle should be cut or boxed up before placing the roots in the trench in order that soil may be packed in among the roots.

Where the hole to receive the tree is dug by hand, remove the top soil and place in a pile and then the bottom soil in separate pile. This will enable you to fill in the top or richer soil next to the roots of the tree. Dig a hole sufficiently deep and large to receive the roots of the tree without ramming them. In a heavy soil never set the tree deeper than it stood in the nursery. In a light soil a couple of inches deeper will not make any difference. A general rule, however, is to set the tree the depth it originally stood in the nursery.

The roots of trees should not be exposed to the drying wind or sun and therefore avoid a windy day to set trees if possible. Wrap a wet sack around the roots and remove the trees as planted. In case of many trees a tub of water and a sled or wagon will be very handy.

In case of a mat of fine roots or excessively long roots, some of the fine ones may be cut off and the long ones shortened. Broken or badly bruised roots should be cut back beyond the injured portion, making a smooth, sloping cut on the under side of the root so that, when planted, the cut surface will come in direct contact with the moist soil.

Place the roots in the hole and fill about one-half full of loose pulverized soil. Avoid grass in the soil. Jolt the tree up and down in order that the soil fill in among the roots. In some cases, it may be necessary to work the soil in among the roots with the fingers. Now firm the soil about the roots. Do not hesitate to use the heel of the shoe where the roots are covered with soil. A two by four inch rammer will not pack the soil too much providing the soil is in proper condition. If the soil is inclined to be a little moist, do not pack too much. Fill and pack again, and finally leave a loose mulch of soil on top.

Do not put fresh manure in the hole. In case manure is mixed with the soil to be placed among the roots, use well-rotted manure. If fresh

LEAGUE LEADERS FALL HEAVILY

To Morgenweck Club, Score 29 to 18.—Home Club Puts Up Strong Defense Allowing Visitors But Two Fields Coming In The Final Minutes.—Campbell Looks Like Star.

The Brooklyn team of the Metropolitan League on paper is the best team in the circuit, with nine games won and two lost. The league leaders lost both their games to Kingston, the latest defeat happening on the local court Wednesday evening, score 29 to 18.

Undoubtedly the Brooklynites have displayed some wonderful playing to gain their exalted position in the league, but they showed very little, if any, of their brilliancy to the local customers. Within six minutes of ending the important contest the visitors were scoreless from the field. This wonderful defense set up by the Morgenweck combination was the best exhibit here in some time. It is very seldom that a team will be kept from scoring from the playground in a period, and the locals almost did the impossible of holding their opponents from scoring at all. The two shots made for the two pointers came from long distance.

This game was a very important one because it cuts down the wide gap the Brooklyn squad had on first place, putting the local representatives in a better position for the first half honors. The recent exchange of plays seemed to work out pretty good as far as Kingston is concerned.

Playing a very important part in last night's game was Manager Morgenweck's latest find, and to say he is a find, is very little from his skillful performance in his first appearance here. "Soup" Campbell is the new comer. Campbell is little known here in basketball circles, but in Trenton, Philadelphia and other large cities his ability is well and favorably known. Campbell seems to be a natural basketball player, with all the necessary gifts, a good shot, speedy and unhesitating. In last night's struggle he came in for the honors of ending the most from the floor, scoring three and was tied for the total honors with Carl Husta, each registering nine points.

Campbell, being a stranger, is singled out of the Morgenweck machine, but otherwise no, because each player displayed a wonderful brand last evening, which if kept up will do much to win the flag.

Banks and Brennan are standing second and third in individual scoring in the league. These two fast forwards are sure to be dethroned if they play against Kingston very often for both these alleged crack shots went scoreless from the field. In the first half both teams committed fourteen fouls. Brooklyn caged six, her total points for that session. The locals were off on the complimentary shots caging but five out of the same number. But five pretty baskets from the court were registered, making the score 15 to 6.

In the last half out of fourteen fouls again the visitors made good eight, while Kingston buried eight out of twelve. Two fields were made by the Brooklyn team in this period and the locals made three. The visiting team got first blood, Brennan making the first point from the correction line. Kingston took the lead when Carl Husta shot the first field and from this time on headed in the pointers. In the opening session Campbell shot two pretty baskets, that are seldom seen.

With a nine point advantage the Kingston club entered the night cap session and increased the lead two points at the conclusion of the contest.

Murray was the referee and he was very "foully" calling a total of fifty-four during the game. The referee's work did not meet with the approval of the fans. Dancing followed the game with a large crowd remaining to dance.
